form a perfect tangle of shrubbery, not often seen in these days of landscape gardening. To lovers of old roof trees and to antiquarians, this house would prove an interesting study.

Among the early owners of the house and of Oxford Furnace were (after Dr. Shippen and members of his family), Morris Robeson (1809-1823), son of Jonathan, the founder; his widow (1823-1849), and Col. Charles Scranton, with associates. Judge William P. Robeson, father of Hon. George M. Robeson, Secretary of the Navy under President Grant, with Capt. John Maxwell of Revolutionary fame, were lessees from 1823 for a number of years, and Secretary Robeson is said to have been born in the old manor house.

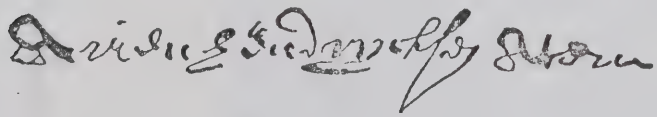
NOTES ON THE ATEN (AUTEN) FAMILY

BY THE EDITOR

FROM NEW JERSEY to the far West and Southwest are various families bearing the name of Aten and Auten, all descending from Adriaen Hendrickse Aten, who came to New Amsterdam from (sup.) Doesburg, Holland, about 1651. Some twenty-five years ago a Mr. Henry J. Aten, of Hiawatha, Kans., a veteran of the Civil War, began a long search of members of the general family in this country, and in the course of it investigated records in New York, on Long Island, etc. A very large collection of his letters to the late Rev. Dr. John B. Thompson, of Readington, N. J., concerning the New Jersey Atens are now in possession of Rutgers College Library, but unfortunately, not the replies. The family work he intended to publish was not published owing to his death. His MSS. fell into the hands of his widow, but recent correspondence has failed to show her present whereabouts. The Editor of the PROCEEDINGS having also made an independent investigation into the family, by request of certain Western members an outline of the "family tree" is herewith given. A very large number of facts and dates not here presented for want of spaces are, nevertheless, in the writer's possession concerning the families in New Jersey.

Dr. Thompson came to the conclusion that "the family was originally Scotch, but many of its members fled from persecution on account of their religion, first to France and then to the Netherlands." This remains to be proven. The Aytoun, de Aten, Ayton, etc., families of Scotland produced many distinguished men from the Barons de Aeton (1307) to a quite recent member of Parliament, but there is no known way of connecting the earlier Aytons, etc., with the Dutch family.

Adriaen Hendrickse Aten, was, of course, the son of a Hendrick, who, however, so far as known, did not come to America. He located at Flatbush, and in 1665 was chosen constable. Various land transfers to and by him are on the Long Island records, and his name is on the Flatbush rate sheets in 1675, 1676, 1683 and 1698. In 1687 he and his sons Hendrick and Thomas took the required oath of allegiance to the King of Great Britain. ("Doc. Hist. of N. Y.," Vol I, pp. 429, 430). He died about April, 1700. When or where he first married and to whom is unknown, but in 1677, or earlier, he married, second, Elizabeth (Thomas) Lubbertse, widow of Gysbert Lubbertse, as both "Adriaen Hendrickse and wife Lysbeth" were then entered as members of the Church at Midwout (Flatbush). He and Elizabeth made a joint will Mar. 20, 1696, which was recorded May 9, 1700, at Flatbush (Flatbush Records, Liber A, p. 224). Adriaen's will only names his daughter "Marrittee" and stepson "Lubbert Gysbertsen," so his other children must have been provided for in his life time. The following is an exact reproduction of Adriaen's signature, taken from a deed made by him in the year 1680:



The loss of the early Flatbush records is undoubtedly the reason why we cannot find dates of baptisms of any of the children of Adriaen by his first marriage, but we know them to have been (order, however, not certain):

CHILDREN OF ADRIAN HENDRICKSE ATEN

1. HENDRICK ATEN; m. Maria De Mott (dau. of Michael De Mott and Annetje Westbrook, of Kingston, N. Y.), who was bapt. at Kingston, Dec. 22, 1678. As Hendrick took the oath of allegiance in 1687, it is evident she was much his junior. No date of the marriage is found, but it was probably not later than 1694. On May 22, 1698, there is a record at Flatbush that "Hendrick Aten and Antie Aten" were witnesses to a baptism, this Antie being probably his sister, or a niece. On Oct. 7, 1707, "Hendrick Aten and Pietertie Aten" were witnesses to a baptism, she being certainly a sister. Hendrick resided at Foster's Meadow, near Jamaica, L. I., where he owned much land, as various records there show. He died there July 19, 1750, as we know from an ancient Bible record, so that he probably lived to be about 90 years of age. He made his will Feb. 10, 1749, probated Feb. 4, 1751. In it he names his wife, Mary, and children: Aderayon (Adriaen), Powel (Paul), Elizabeth Rainer and Mary Alburtis, and "sons-in-law Anthony De Mott" (a slip for brother-in-law), "John Alburtis and Aaron Place."

2. PIETERJE ATEN, who m. at Flatbush, Apr. 25, 1689, Christian Snedeker; he died 1715.

3. ANNETJE ATEN, who m. Thomas Skillman, of Newtown, L. I.; he d. 1740. (For him and their ch., see "N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Record, "Vol. 37, pp. 25, 26. He was the son of Capt. Thomas Skillman and Sara (Scofield) Pettit, who were m. in 1669.)

4. THOMAS ATEN, a weaver, who m. Elsje Skillman, sister of Thomas Skillman, supra. He at first was at Newtown, L. I., but on Apr. 26, 1709, with his brother John (5), purchased of Thomas Purcell 400 acres of land in Piscataway township, Middlesex county, near New Brunswick. Their children, mostly baptized in New York or Brooklyn, were: Adriaen, Thomas, Jr., Jan, Jannetje, and perhaps others. Thomas, Jr. (wife Sytie, or Hilletje) had ch. bapt. at Raritan, N. J. (Somerville), Powel, Helena, Powel (2nd), Dirck, Thomas, Feyte, Yaen and Aaron, between 1732 and 1761. Jan, who m. Elizabeth Sutphen, had ch. bapt. at Somerville and at Readington, N. J., between 1730 and 1746, Koosie, Antje, Jacob, Jan, Elsje, Thomas, Lisabet and Maria. Powell (2nd), if same above, had wife Maria, and had ch. bapt. at Raritan, between 1762 and 1775, Thomas, Voelkert, Jaen, Myra and Roelf. Of Adriaen we know nothing.

5. Jan Aten, who m. Elizabeth Skillman, another sister of Thomas Skillman. He and his brother Thomas Aten, and their wives, were charter members of "The River and Lawrence Brook Dutch Church," at Three-Mile-Run, near New Brunswick, in 1717. He lived on 230 acres in Franklin township, Somerset county, in 1735, and died in 1744, when his will was probated (Trenton Wills, Book D, p. 136). His children named in will were: John, Jr., Thomas, and Elizabeth (Smith). A child, Martha, was also bapt. at Jamaica, L. I., in 1705. Of Thomas we know nothing, but John, Jr., with wife Jannetje (Nevius?) had ch. bapt at Raritan and New Brunswick, between 1735 and 1742, viz., Jan, Catlyne, Roleph, and Thomas.

6. Child, who died 1688, name unknown; father paid "for use of shroud."

7. Helena Aten (supposed), as she was witness to a baptism at Jamaica, June 27, 1704.

By his second marriage, with Elizabeth Lubbertse, Adriaen Hendrickse Aten had:

8. Maritee Aten, bapt. Mar. 31, 1678, at Flatbush; m., before 1707, Johannes De Mott (sister to Maria De Mott, wife of Hendrick, 1) who d. 1715. They had 5 ch. bapt. at Jamaica.

9. Paulus Aten, bapt. Nov. 14, 1680, at Flatbush; probably d. 1684 or 1689, as father then paid "for use of a shroud."

10. Another (sup.) who d. in 1684 or 1689, when father paid "for use of a shroud."

(So far as we know there are in New Jersey, now, no male descendants of any of the sons of Adriaen Hendrickse Aten, except of Hendrick, with, possibly, the exception of the Auten families of Somerset county. The latter descend from an Aaron Auten, who resided at Somerville, N. J., and had various children, many of whom were prominent in Somerset county a half century ago, and some representatives are still in that general locality. This Aaron was b. about 1740 and died in 1784. His parentage has long been an enigma to the writer. He may have been a descendant of Jan (5), or Thomas (4), but this has not been ascertained. Aaron's ch. were John, Aaron, Thomas, James, Abraham, Isaac, Peter and Anna, most of whose descendants are traceable.)

CHILDREN OF HENDRICK ATEN (1) AND MARIA DE MOTT

(Order not certain)

1. ADRIAN ATEN, of near Readington, N. J. b. probably about 1696; d. Dec. 10, 1757; m., about 1718, Jacobje Middagh (dau. of Dirck Middagh and Cathelyne Van Neste), who was b. Oct. 24, 1693, and d. in Northampton co., Pa., May 16, 1782. (This Adrian has been usually considered as the son of Thomas Aten (5, above), and so published, e. g., in the "N. Y. Gen. & Biog. Rec.," Vol. 37, p. 26, but an old Bible record discovered in Western Pennsylvania proves Hendrick Aten and Maria (De Mott) Aten to have been his parents). Jacobje, Adrian's wife, was a remarkably saintly woman, always known as "The Pious Jacobje." Adrian settled near Readington (toward Centerville), about 1735. On May 31, 1744, he purchased 300 acres of land in Northampton co., Pa., in Mt. Bethel twsp., probably for his eldest son Dirck, who soon after removed there. Adrian's will of Dec. 8, 1757, probat. Feb. 28, 1758 (Trenton Wills, Book 8, p. 566), refers to his eight then living children. In all he had ten children, viz.: (1) Antje, b., 1719, who m., first, Nicholas Schamp, and second John Sutphen. (2) Dirck, b. Aug. 22, 1721; m., first, Dec., 1745, Judith Van Fleet; second, August., 1749, Adaranche Langstraat; third, Catherine Warner. He was farmer, blacksmith and ferry master at "Aten's Ferry," crossing the Delaware, in Northampton co., Pa., and is said to have had 13 children. (3). Hendrick, b. Sept. 3, 1723; m. Mary—and also resided in Mt. Bethel twsp., Northampton co., Pa. Probably d. before Nov. 13, 1778. He had ch., Hendrick, Thomas, George, John, Sarah, and perhaps others, who generally settled in Western Pennsylvania. The descendants of this Hendrick (b. 1723) and Mary, includes the late Henry F.

Auten, of Little Rock, Ark., a prominent lawyer. His descent is from this Hendrick to son John, his son Henry, and then Henry, the lawyer. The latter has a sister, Mrs. E. J. Corkin, who resides at Loyalton, S. Dakota. A Thomas Aten of near Clinton, Allegheny co., Pa., traces his descent from the same Hendrick (b. 1723), through a son Thomas, (b. 1760; d. 1855) of Northumberland co., and, later, Allegheny co., Pa., grandfather of the Thomas of Clinton. (4). Cathalyntje, b. Jan. 27, 1726, who d. in infancy. (5). Martyje, b. Jan. 15, 1728, who m., Aug. 24, 1748, William Van Fleet. (6). Cathalyntje (second), b. July 29, 1730, said to have m. an Insley. (7). Jan. b. Dec. 22, 1732; m. Elizabeth (Boydyn?). (8). Gerardus, (twin with Jan); m., 1756, Dinah Johnson and resided in Harmony twsp., Sussex (now Warren) co., N. J. (9). Judith b. July 9, 1735; d. July 22, 1819; m., Apr. 6, 1770, Joseph Morehead, grandfather of the late Judge Joseph P. Thompson, of Readington, N. J. (See Snell's "Hunt. and Som. Co.," pp. 490, 491). (10) Adrian, b. Nov. 7, 1737; m. Elizabeth Stryker. He went to Northampton co., Pa. about 1764 and was living in 1801, after which no further record of him.

2. Powell (Paul) Aten, b. about 1700; d. about May, 1782; m. Maria Van Neste, dau. of Pieter Van Neste of Brooklyn. His will of 1782 (if the same Paul) names his son George and daughters Anna and Mary.

3. Elizabeth Aten, bapt. at Jamaica, 1713; m. —— Rainer.

4. Marie Aten, bapt. at Jamaica, 1715, m. John Alburtis.

(Undoubtedly there were others whose names have not come to light).

Note.—A Hendrick Hendrickzen, from Doesburg, Holland, who may or may not have been a brother to Adriaen Hendrickse Aten, was m., June 12, 1655, in the New Amsterdam Dutch ch., and had children, Hendrick, Johannes and Grietje. The two sons became the ancestors of the Dusenbury families (corrupted name of Doesburg).

An Adrian Hendrickse, from Berckeloo (now Borcalow), Holland, who arrived in New Amsterdam, May 24, 1662, in the ship "Faith," with wife Grietje Warnarts and two children, has been mistaken for Adriaen Hendrikse Aten, but his male descendants took the name of Sip (or Sipp).

We are greatly indebted to Mr. John Neafie, genealogist, of New York City, for many dates and facts concerning the earlier of the foregoing lines; only his close scrutinizing of New York and Long Island records has brought them to light.—Editor.

Whether we get a drum stick on our plate tomorrow or whether this year's gobblers were out of reach of Edna's household pocketbook—one thing's sure, and that is we are mighty thankful for the year that has clambered through since last Thanksgiving

What, with strikes and shutouts—and tariff and taxes—and Babe Ruth out of the game so long—and the air so full of Please Remits—and one cord tire all shot up—and so many things that might have means G. L. O. G. M. somehow Thursday again reminds us of all the good folks who read our "ads" and buy our goods and keep our store going, and our sales growing and so we join with you in another sincere and whole hearted Thanksgiving

A TEMPERANCE FOURTH

Plans Being Made by the Anti-Saloon League.

The Indiana Anti Liquor League will try to make Indiana's Fourth of July celebrations this year clear water affairs. The State officers are advising the local Anti-Saloon League workers, all over the State, to prepare to hold or control the Fourth of July celebrations in their towns and cities this year. Nothing stronger than ice water is to be used at these celebrations and the saloon is to be fought with remonstrances, as the birthday of the nation is celebrated.

The recommendation of the State league officers is being generally adopted. The Methodists in the Kokomo district of the Northern Indiana Conference have arranged to open a summer campaign against the saloons in Hamilton, Tipton, Cass, Miami, Wabash and Howard counties and make a special feature of anti-saloon Fourth of July celebrations in most of the thirty towns and cities in the district.

Kentland Has Its Troubles.

George Ade, whose "Fables in Slang," have made him famous the country over, might find all the material for an amusing story without resorting to fiction if he would pay a visit to his old home at Kentland just at present.

Newton county has for some time been embroiled in a fierce fight for the relocation of the county seat. Kentland at present is just recovering from the loss of the courthouse to Goodland. To add to the tribulations of the community the state board of health today learned that smallpox had broken out at Kentland and there are threats of a general quarantine. Between the disease and the county seat war Newton has about all it can attend to. And this is no fable.

town, in Schuylkill county, Pa. All three were farmers, and their lands adjoined. Abraham had, among other children, Benjamin and George; Andrew had sons Jacob, George and John; and there were also Abraham and Elias, sons of either Abraham, Sr., or Andrew.

Georg Erdman had a large farm, upon which he built a house and a barn, and his son Nathan succeeded him there. He died Aug. 5, 1858, and he and his wife are buried at the Salem (Herb) Church, at Rough and Ready, in Schuylkill county. He was a Lutheran member of that church. He married Anna Catharine Schneider, who was born July 6, 1792, daughter of Johann Nicholas and Anna Maria Schneider, and died Aug. 20, 1842. They had a large family: Daniel; George; Solomon, born March 19, 1822, who died Nov. 18, 1859; Elias, born Jan. 29, 1824, who died Sept. 24, 1856; Nathan, who died March 7, 1897, aged seventy-one years, six months, eight days (his wife Rachel died Dec. 1, 1897, aged seventy-four years, ten months, nineteen days); William; Lydia, who married William Kehres; Catharine, who married William Kehres; Polly, Mrs. Knorr; Dina, Mrs. Isaac Rebuck; Mrs. John Smith; Rebecca, Mrs. Michael Brown; and Harriet, Mrs. Moses Hartman, who survives.

George Erdman, father of John K. Erdman, was born in 1818, and died in 1882, at the age of sixty-four years. He is buried at the Blue church near Paxinos. He lived on the hill road leading from Paxinos to Shamokin, where he had a small farm, and he owned a tract of 125 acres at Bear Gap, which he rented. He was a devout church member, and held the office of deacon. His wife, Mary (Knorr), daughter of John Knorr, of Mahantango Valley, bore him the following children: William K., a carpenter by trade, justice of the peace and active in Democratic politics, who lived at Shamokin; Caroline, who married Joseph Kaseman; John K.; Daniel; Elizabeth, who married David Startzel; Catharine, who married J. B. Repley; Mary E., born in 1852, who died in 1873; Frank, a carpenter and contractor, who lives on the homestead near Weigh Scales (he is now serving his second term as a county commissioner); Ida, who died young, in 1863; George; and Albert.

John K. Erdman was reared on the farm. When nineteen years old he commenced to learn the trade of carpenter, in Shamokin township, and he followed that calling for twelve years, after which he returned to farm life, locating in Ralpho township. There he lived from 1871 to 1883, cultivating a farm of fifty acres which he sold, and for one year thereafter lived at Stonington, where he farmed as a tenant. In 1885 he came to Rockefeller township, settling on the farm which he has since occupied. He owns 212 acres, well located, of which 115 acres are under cultivation, devoted to general crops. Since 1902 Mr. Erdman has sold his produce at Trevorton. Before that he went all the way to Shamokin to market. In 1908 he retired from active labor, but he continues to make his home on the farm. This was formerly the John Dunkelberger homestead, and earlier owned by a Yordy. Mr. Erdman is a highly esteemed citizen, and has received many evidences of the confidence his fellow citizens have in his ability and trustworthiness. While in Shamokin township he was elected overseer of the poor, and since coming to Rockefeller township he has been chosen to serve as school director and supervisor. In politics he is a Democrat. During the Civil war he served a nine months' term as member of Company C, 131st Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers. He and his family worship at the Augustaville Lutheran church, of which he has been deacon and elder.

In 1867 Mr. Erdman married Annie Lewessa Reply, daughter of John and Rachel (Campbell) Reply, and she died in 1878, the mother of five children: Della, Rebecca M., Joseph E., Charles W. and Mary R. In 1880 Mr. Erdman married (second) Mary F. Vastine, daughter of Hugh Vastine, of Rush township, this county, and they have had nine children: Hattie C., Sallie I., Elenora B., Alice L., David A., John H. R., Peter C., Kimber H. and Frank C.

LUTHER E. ROAT, of Milton, who has been a merchant in that borough since 1894, was born in 1870 in Liberty township, Montour Co., Pa., and is the oldest son of Henry and Rebecca (Muthart) Roat.

Jacob Roat, Sr., his great-grandfather, was a native of Berks county, Pa., where the name is commonly found with the original spelling, Roth. In his young manhood he moved to Schuylkill county, Pa., where he passed the remainder of his life, dying about 1850. He was twice married, Jacob, the grandfather of Luther E. Roat, being a child of the first marriage, while David and Mrs. Cooper (of Danville, Pa.) were born to the second marriage. Mr. Roat's second wife died in Danville about 1890, at the advanced age of ninety years.

Jacob Roat, Jr., was born in Schuylkill county, and moved to Columbia county, Pa., thence in 1842 removing to Liberty township, Montour county, where he followed farming until his death, which occurred at the age of 55. He married Margaret Heimbach, and they were the parents of seven children: (1) Philip, who died in 1872, married Kate Wirth. (2) Lewis, who died in 1907, married (first) Miss Jane Auten, who died in 1873, leaving two daughters, Margaret and Edith, and one son, Clarence. His second wife, Kate Stine, was the mother of two children, William and Edward. (3) Andrew married (first) Elizabeth Blue and their children were Frank (of Milton, Pa.), Emma (married John Billmeyer) and Sarah (married William Gearhart and has two sons, Charles and Harry). For his second wife Andrew Roat married a Miss Dye, by whom he had one son, Grant, who married Lottie Dietrich. (4) Phoebe married Henry Buss and died in 1908. They had children as follows: Robert, who lives in Battle Creek, Mich.; Ramsey, who married a Miss Glase and had a son, Clay, who married a Miss Weaver; Lewis, who married a Miss Billmeyer and has had children, Charles (who married Carrie Mohr and has three children, Gladys, Edna and Mildred), George, Mame (married John Rissel and has one daughter, Thelma) and Grace (married to Bruce Gold); Anne, who lives with her father; Charlotte, who married Alfred Bare and has two sons; Etta, who married David Watt; and Hurley, who married a Miss Houtz. (5) Mahala married Peter Billmeyer and has four children, Frank, Emma, Blanche and Harry. (6) Elizabeth married John Kelley and had children: Elizabeth, Audrey, Henry, Phoebe, Ida, Mahala and Margaret. (7) Henry is mentioned below.

Henry Roat, youngest son of Jacob Roat, Jr., married Rebecca Muthart, daughter of William and Lydia (Martin) Muthart, natives of Berks county who later settled in Montour county. Mrs. Roat had the following brothers and sisters: Martha, who died in 1906; Catharine, who married Joseph Y. Sechler; Elmira, who married Oliver Caldwell (both are deceased); and Augustus, who married Jane Clemens and lives in Kansas. Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roat: Luther E.; William, who married Julia Hagenbuch and has one son, Paul W.; Lewis H.; George P., who married Elizabeth St. Clair; Annie, who married Charles Ruckle; Augustus M.; Blanche M.; and Frank, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Luther E. Roat was educated in the public schools of Montour county, at Pottsgrove Academy, and Williamsport (Pa.) Commercial School, preparing to enter the sophomore year at Muhlenberg College. For six years he taught school in his native county. In 1894 he came to the borough of Milton, Northumberland county, where he opened a notion store in the Piper block. The next year, 1895, he moved his business to the room formerly occupied by the Reise Clothing Store, and was there established until 1903, meantime, in 1898, enlarging the store. In 1903 he removed to the adjoining room, where he still has his notion business. In 1905 Mr. Roat purchased from J. P. Hackenberg the retail china store which in 1907 he removed to the room adjoining his notion store, at that time removing the partition between the two rooms and throwing the space into one large room. His business in both lines has expanded to such an extent that he now requires the services of nine people regularly, with additional help on Saturdays. Mr. Roat has proved himself one of the most enterprising business men of his adopted place. He has not only made his trade prosper to his own advantage, but decidedly to the accommodation of his fellow citizens, and he has the universal good-will and patronage of the community. As a substantial, useful resident of Milton he is respected by all who know him. He is a member of the Trinity Lutheran church, which he has served for some time as member of the Council; is a Republican in political sentiment, but not active in party or public affairs; and socially he holds membership in the Modern Woodmen of America and the Grand Fraternity.

In February, 1896, Mr. Roat married Mame Hoffman, daughter of Jacob and Amanda (Shalter) Hoffman, who had a family of seven children: Ella; Mame, Mrs. Roat; John, who married Anna Ficks, who died in May, 1895, leaving one daughter, Mary, who lives with her aunt, Mrs. Roat; William; Harry, who married Mary Martz and has two children, Florence and Willington; Emma, who married Warren W. Moser and has one son, Ralph; and Charles, who married Blanche Coteur and has two children, Owen and Bernice.

HORACE L. FOLLMER, merchant miller at Watsontown, Northumberland county, has been established in business at that place only a short time, but he is conducting a well known plant built by John McFarland and operated for a time by Follmer, Fowler & Co.

Mr. Follmer was born April 12, 1872, at Williamsport, Lycoming Co., Pa., near which place his grandfather, William Follmer, owned a farm upon which he lived and carried on agricultural pursuits. He died upon his farm. Among his children were Adam, Peter (who is living on the old homestead), William, Amelia, Susan, Maggie and Lydia.

William Follmer, son of William, was born on the homestead in Lycoming county, and followed farming during his active years. He died at Trout Run, Lycoming county, March 27, 1910, aged seventy-four years, an honored and respected citizen of that community. He was elected prothonotary of Lycoming county and filled that office efficiently and creditably. He married Catharine Biehl, daughter of Peter Biehl, and to them were born children as follows: Ella, married to J. C. Fowler; Jennie; Clayton C., deceased; William, who died young; Clemine, who married Rev. C. P. Bastian and is now living at Keyser, W. Va.; Horace L.; and Margaret.

Horace L. Follmer attended public school at Williamsport, later was a pupil in the high school at Watsontown, and finally took a course at the three years, until 1856. Meantime, in 1855, he had engaged in business with J. P. Purcell, under the firm name of Zimmerman & Purcell, miners and shippers of coal, at Shamokin, but after a brief career of success the company met with reverses, failing in 1856. That year Mr. Zimmerman was elected to the State Legislature, in which he served two terms, and on his return to private life he entered the employ of Stroh & Elliott, as superintendent of their coal business. He was also engaged by various firms as bookkeeper, filling positions of trust with Haas & Fagely and John Dewees & Brother, in 1864 locating permanently at Shamokin, where in 1869 he established the business later conducted by his son, John B. Zimmerman, manufacturing wagons and carriages and dealing in harness. In 1877 he established the livery business which he carried on until his death, in 1893. He was president of a Shamokin banking concern.

Mr. Zimmerman's career was a forceful example of what a man may accomplish by application and well directed energy. Though he had no advantages of means or education to aid him in his early struggles his intelligence and ambition carried him over many hard places and won him a substantial position, not only as one who succeeded well in his private undertakings but who received unusual marks of confidence at the hands of his fellow citizens in the way of public honors. In 1870 he was elected chief burgess, and twice afterward was called to that office, in 1876 and again in 1884, serving from 1884 to 1886. He was a lifelong Democrat and ever active in promoting the interests of his party, in which he was a leader in his section. At the time of Lee's raid into Pennsylvania he joined Captain Bruner's Company at Sunbury. He was a Mason for over fifty years, belonging to Sunbury Lodge and Northumberland Chapter.

In 1843 Mr. Zimmerman married Harriet M. Bright, daughter of Jacob Bright, a jeweler by trade, who died at Sunbury; Mr. Bright served in the war of 1812. Nine children were born to this marriage, two of whom died in infancy, the others being: Ella Lucy, who married J. B. Phillips, and died in Virginia; Harriet, wife of Paul Roth, of Shamokin; John B.; George H., a painter of Shamokin, who married Sarah J. Drumheller and has three children, William, Ralph (former chief of the Shamokin fire department and now serving in the borough council) and Howard; Rosa, wife of Samuel Haas, of Shamokin; Milton E., born Aug. 22, 1857, an attorney; and William Cameron, a painter, who lives in Philadelphia.

John B. Zimmerman, son of Jeremiah H., was born May 22, 1851, in Sunbury, Northumberland county, and received his education in the public schools of Shamokin. He followed the business of his father and grandfather, learning the trade of blacksmith, in which he met with unusual success. The carriage works established by his father in 1869, on Market street, in a building 20 x 30 feet, grew steadily in size and importance until they occupied a commodious site at Independence and Market streets, the establishment including blacksmith and carriage shops and a large repository. Twenty-five employees were steadily engaged in the manufacture of wagons, carriages and all kinds of vehicles, and the patronage was drawn from a wide territory. The equipment and facilities for handling all branches of the business were added to as the demands of the trade required, being always up to standard, and his business was the foremost of the kind in the borough. In the spring of 1899 the business was moved to West Sixth street, in the vicinity of the high bridge, and Mr. Zimmerman died shortly after, on July 6, 1899. He was a very well known citizen of Shamokin, though he mingled little in public affairs, devoting himself almost entirely to the large business he had established. He did, however, at the solicitation of his fellow citizens, serve as assistant burgess of the borough. He was a stanch Democrat in political faith.

On April 5, 1874, Mr. Zimmerman married Jane Newberry, of the borough of Northumberland, who survives him, making her home in Shamokin. Six children were born to this union: Ida May, Edward B., Harriet M., John, Clara and Grover Cleveland.

Edward B. Zimmerman received his education in the public schools. After leaving school he at once joined his father at the factory, learning the business, and upon his father's death he became manager of the plant, to which he devotes all of his time. It is in a flourishing condition, fifteen skilled workmen being regularly employed, principally on custom work, turning out farm and spring wagons. The trade is large, and includes general repair work as well as manufacturing. The building occupied is a fine, substantial structure, 44 x 100 feet in dimensions, and conveniently arranged. Mr. Zimmerman has shown himself to be possessed of both the executive ability and mechanical skill which have characterized the members of this family for generations, and he is also maintaining the family reputation for high standards of citizenship and personal worth. He is well known in the ranks of the Democratic party, in whose interest he has been active. Fraternally he belongs to the local lodge of Elks and to the Odd Fellows.

Mr. Zimmerman married Sarah Pursley, of Union county, Pa., and they have had one daughter, Kathleen.

FOLLMER. The Follmer family in Northumberland county is descended from Jacob Follmer, who with his wife and one son, Michael, then a child, left Germany for America (Jacob's older brother, Michael, may have come with them). Finding the early home for the Germans in the Schoharie Valley, in New York, closed to them, he came in 1737 to Berks county, where he purchased land in the Tulpehocken settlement and built for himself a home. There he reared his family and spent the remainder of his days. Two of his sons, Michael and George Jacob, came to Northumberland county in 1778 and settled in Turbut township.

Michael Follmer, who was born in Germany Sept. 26, 1723, died near the Follmer Church Sept. 29, 1793, and he was interred in the old burying ground adjoining that church; his wife was also buried there. A man of intelligence and strong religious convictions, he labored earnestly for two things in his new home, religion and education. He and his sons donated the site for the Follmer Lutheran church and a farm of eight acres to the congregation, and in his will he left £15 to the church then in process of construction and £10 toward building a schoolhouse, as well as £10 toward the teaching of poor children belonging to the church above mentioned. His wife Regina, whom he married in Berks county, was born June 18, 1730, and died Aug. 18, 1813. Nine children were born to their union: John (born Jan. 16, 1750), George (born Aug. 16, 1751), Adam, Frederick, Henry, Michael, Elizabeth, Magdaline and Catharine. Their records and that of their posterity are given below in the order just named.

He married Mary Elizabeth Geiger, who died Jan. 2, 1820, and for his second wife he married Eva Barbara Follmer, who died Feb. 23, 1857. His six children, four by the first union and two by the second, were as follows: (1) Susan, born April 3, 1804, died Oct. 15, 1826. (2) Daniel, born April 13, 1806, is mentioned below. He was an extensive farmer in Turbut, his native township, owning some three hundred acres, and a prominent citizen of his time, serving for many years as justice of the peace, and one term in the State Legislature, and he was well known in local business circles as president of the Danville Mutual Fire Insurance Company and as a stockholder and one of the incorporators of the Buffalo Milling Company of Lewisburg. He was a Democrat in politics, a Mason in fraternal connection (member of Milton Lodge, F. & A. M.) and a member of the Follmer Church. A prominent man in his district, he served in various township offices and for many years was a trustee of the Follmer Lutheran Church. In politics he was a Democrat up to the time of the Civil war.

Berkhimer; Mary E., born Dec. 25, 1876, married David Corselt; Margaret I., born April 7, 1879, married Adam Yerg, and has one son, Adam Follmer. (3) Margaret Ann, born July 15, 1836, unmarried, is living at the homestead in Turbut township. (4) Charles Franklin is mentioned below. (5) Sarah Elmira, born Oct. 8, 1840, married William Raup and they live in Chillisquaque township. (6) Daniel Henry is mentioned below. (7) Susanna E., born Feb. 3, 1846, unmarried, is living with her sister on the homestead. (8) John S., born July 18, 1851, received his early education in the public schools of Milton and at Limestone Academy, read medicine with Dr. C. H. Dougal and graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, 1876. He had previously served an apprenticeship to the drug business, in which he engaged after practicing medicine one year, establishing himself in business at Milton, where he has a wide patronage and high reputation. In 1879 he married Elizabeth B. Voris, daughter of Peter Voris, of Chillisquaque township, and they have two children, Frederick Voris and Malcolm Murray. In politics Dr. Follmer is a Democrat, and he and his wife are members of the M. E. Church.

Charles Franklin Follmer, son of Daniel, was born Aug. 15, 1838, in Turbut township, on the old farm near the Follmer Church, and began his education in the local schools. Later he attended McEwensville Academy. He was reared to farming, and engaged in that calling until 1864, when he removed to Milton and entered the insurance business, in which he continued the remainder of his life, becoming very well known in his section in that connection. Representing the most reliable companies of America and England, he gained a large circle of patrons and made a notable success of the business. Other enterprises of the borough received his encouragement and substantial support, he having been a member of the Milton Gas Company (which he served some years as secretary and treasurer) and a director of the First National Bank of Milton. He was also a member of the Buffalo Milling Company, of Lewisburg. Upon the death of his father he purchased the old homestead where he was born, and he was the owner of that property at the time of his death, which occurred May 1, 1897. Mr. Follmer is buried in the Upper cemetery at Milton. He was one of the most progressive citizens of his time in this region, and his death was regarded as a general loss, for he was active in many phases of the life of the community and a useful man in every relation of life. In early life he was a Lutheran, having been confirmed at the Follmer Church, but upon his removal to Milton he united with the Presbyterian Church. In politics he was a Democrat.

In 1872 Mr. Follmer married Abbie A. Thomas, daughter of William F. Thomas, of Moorestown, N. J., who, like his father, was a coal operator; the grandfather was located at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Follmer had two daughters: Henrietta, who married Lord Hartman Burr, a banker of Moorestown, N. J.; and Annie G., who lives with her mother. Mrs. Follmer now makes her home at Moorestown, New Jersey.

Daniel Henry Follmer, son of Daniel, born Aug. 19, 1843, died in January, 1909, and is buried at the Paradise Church. He received his education in the public schools and Milton Academy. He was a lifelong farmer, and in 1889 purchased the well known place in Turbut township known as the Abe Engle farm, which contains eighty-two acres of the most valuable land in the district. In politics Mr. Follmer was a Democrat and he served two years as auditor of his township. With his family he belonged to the Follmer Lutheran Church, which he served as deacon. In 1869 he married Rebecca C. Schaeffer, who now resides in Turbut township with her children, Rolland Sydney and Bertha Gertrude, the latter the wife of J.

ATEN (AUTEN) FAMILIES

Furnished by Isabella G. Beer, Washington, D. C.

Derick Aten was of the fourth generation of "Atens" in America. He read his Dutch Bible and spoke the Dutch language as long as he lived. The following is his line of descent from the progenitor in America:

Adrian Hendrickse Aten immigrated from some place in the Netherlands, probably from Doeysburg on the river Ysel, in the province of Guilderland, and settled at Flatbush, (now Brooklyn) in 1651. For this we have his own statement in the oath of allegiance, which he took at Flatbush in 1687, which states that he was a native of Holland, and had resided at Flatbush 36 years. (Doc. History of N. Y., Vol. 1, page 429-430). He made his will March 20, 1695-6.

His son Thomas took the oath of allegiance at Flatbush, L. I., with his father but in it states that he is a native. Thomas Aten married Elsje Schillman, and their son Adrian was baptized in the Dutch church at Flatbush, September 4, 1695, the witnesses being Adrian Hendrickse Aten, and his wife Elizabeth Thomas.

Thomas, John, and Paul, sons of Adrian Hendrickse Aten, removed to the valley of the Raritan, settling on farms near New Brunswick, N. J., in about 1715.

~~Adrian Aten, (son of Thomas and Elsje) and Jacobje Middagh were married~~ in 1718. She was the daughter of Derick Middagh and Katalyn Van Neste, her grandfather Aert Middagh having immigrated from Herkop, in the province of Utrecht, in 1657, while her grandfather Peter Van Neste, came over about 1654.

Adrian Aten and Jacobje Middagh had the following children, all of whom except one grew to manhood and womanhood:

Antje, born August 25, 1719.
Dirck, born August 22, 1721.
Hendrick, born September 3, 1723.
Cathalyne, born January 27, 1726. (died in infancy)
Marritje, born January 15, 1728.
Kathalyne, born July 29, 1730.
Jan and Gerradus, born December 22, 1732.
Judick, born July 9, 1735.
Adrian, born November 7, 1737.

Adrian died at Readington, Hunterdon County, N. J., December 10, 1757. His will is on file at the office of the Sec. of State of N. J. Jacobje died in Northampton County, Pa., May 16, 1782.

Dirck, the eldest son and second child of Adrian and Jacobje, moved to Northampton County, Pa., about 1760, as did his brother Hendrick; both living and dying on adoining farms, some seven or eight miles below the Water Gap. Dirck owned land on both sides of the Delaware River. He established a ferry which was known as Aten's ferry for 120 years, it having decended first to his son John, and then to his grandson Dirck, who chartered it by Act of the N. J. Legislature in 1858. Dirck established the custom of ferrying people free in going to or returning from divine service.

Dirck was married three times, first to Judith Van Fleet; second to Arianche Longstreet, and third to Catherine Warner.

His children were:

Japie, by first wife.
Judith, by second wife.
Adrian, by second wife, married Martha Neer.
Christiana, by second wife.
Richard, by third wife.
Adda, by third wife (married Thomas Beer in 1787 who was injured in the battle of Trenton)
Sarah, by third wife.
Mary, by third wife.
Henry, by third wife (died in 103rd year in 1876.)
Thomas, by third wife.
John, by third wife.
Peter, by third wife.

NO

NO—THIS IS FALSE!

Catherine, by third wife.

Dirck was commissioned a Second Lieut, in Captain Ribble's company, Second Regiment, Sussex County Militia, Febr. 21, 1776. He was a man of great piety and finding no church of his faith in the vicinity of his new home he became a communicant of St. James Protestant Episcopal at Knowlton, Ramsaysburg, N. J. His name is found on the records of the church as having served as warden and vestryman up to within a few days of his death. He was listed for taxation in 1780 at £1344. He died in 1809.

Catherine Warner, his third wife, was probably a resident of Northampton County, but the dates of this marriage and her death are unknown.

SPADER-VANDERBILT.—"Lately I have come into possession of a few facts regarding the Spader family, formerly an important family in Somerset County, which may be of interest to some of your readers. While incomplete and fragmentary, these facts may help some one to trace his genealogy with greater ease. From what is seemingly a copy of an old Bible record, I find:

"1. William; d. Nov. 5, 1704. He apparently died in Somerset County. I have the record of only one child (there were probably others), viz.:

THE OLD HERMIT OF THE RARITAN

BY REV. T. E. DAVIS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

A FEW years ago, while looking up some local history in the Library of the Historical Society at Newark, I found the story of "The Old Hermit," as it appears in substance in the accompanying article. At first I was inclined to accept it as a story of the imagination, based possibly on a slight foundation of fact. But a careful investigation, and the testimony of several of the oldest residents who gave me additional information about "The Old Hermit," led me to accept the story as true, and to believe that "truth is stranger than fiction." Especially am I indebted for much of this information to the late Mrs. Cornelius W. LaTourette, who, as a child, lived with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Staats, only a short distance from the "Hermitage," and who remembered distinctly hearing them tell many of the details that I shall now give.

The story is one of the strange, sad ones of the old colonial days of Bound Brook and vicinity, and concerns John Auten, "The Old Hermit of the Raritan."

No nobler band of settlers came to our country than those whose early homes were "on the banks of the old Raritan." On the north side of the river, in the vicinity of Bound Brook, were the English and the Scotch. On the south side of the river from Bound Brook to New Brunswick most of the settlers were of Holland birth. Among these noble families from the Netherlands were two whose names have become familiar and prominent in our country—Auten and Vanderbilt.

John Auten and John Vanderbilt had lived near each other in Holland. They had been intimate friends in the home land, and, together, they sailed across the ocean for a home in the New World. But they came not alone. With each was a trusting wife. Auten and Vanderbilt settled first on Long Island but soon after moved to New Jersey, about the year 1725.

John Auten was twenty-five years of age when he came to New Jersey, and took up a large tract of land on the south side of the Raritan river, a short distance below South Bound Brook. Bound Brook was then but a hamlet of fifteen scattered houses; Somerville was not yet known; New Brunswick a small settlement called Inians Ferry. On this tract of land John Auten built a rude but substantial log house with all other buildings needful for a farmer's use.

The years passed by. Ten years of faithful labor, but the labor had not been in vain. Prosperity had smiled upon John Auten. Every year had seen new fields tilled. Before the woodman's axe and the farmer's plough, the rough, unbroken forest had become the fruitful field. Every year larger harvests had rejoiced the heart of the patient husbandman. In his home were two bright, healthy, happy children, John, bearing his father's name, and Jane.

Early one June morning after breakfast, John Auten shouldered his axe and, carrying a dinner pail, went to a forest, a mile away, to cut some trees. Evening came. The sun went down behind the western hills. In the little house anxious eyes were looking for the return of the husband and the father.

But all their watching and waiting were in vain. What could have kept him absent? Perhaps the Indians had killed him! But that could not be, for there was peace between the Raritan Indians and early settlers.

Leaving her little ones in the house, the faithful wife hastened to the nearest neighbor to tell her story. A party was hastily formed to go in search of the missing man. They went to the forest; found the trees that had fallen before the sharp axe, and, under one of the branches, cold in death, they found the form of John Auten. The men made a litter of branches and on it carefully placed the body of their friend and neighgor, and tenderly carried it home. Near the home, the first in the family burying-ground, a grave was dug and there his body was laid to rest.

The widow refused all the kind offers of neighbors to leave her home or to sell or rent her farm. With a resolution and faith, noble and heroic, she began the great struggle. She became a farmer. She ploughed the fields and sowed the seed and reaped the harvest. She brought up her children to be diligent, obedient, virtuous. And all her toil and love and self-sacrifice were fully repaid.

Eighteen years passed away. Jane Auten had grown into a lovely woman. She had taken the marriage vow, and now was saying farewell to the home of her birth and childhood. The son of her father's old friend, John Vanderbilt, was the husband whom she had promised to "love until death shall separate." To a new home on the banks of the Raritan river, Vanderbilt took his young wife. It was not far away from the old home, where Widow Auten and her son still lived. John, the son, had remained at home, for while there were no doubt fascinating women then as now, for young John Auten filial duty and affection bound him so closely to home and mother, that for them all other things were sacrificed.

It was at the close of a November day, four years later, when John Auten was returning home from his work. Coming near the cottage he heard various footsteps. He hid himself in the bushes, and awaited the approach of the strangers or friends. Soon there hastily passed by him, four large, powerful Indians. So close was he that he could almost touch them. He looked carefully into their faces and so marked their features, that he could never forget them. Then, realizing that their errand was one of evil rather than of good, he hastened home. Entering the cottage the moon's beams, shining through the window, showed in the pale light the outline of some dark object on the floor. Hastily lighting a pine knot, by its dim light he saw the mutilated dead form of his own mother. Leaning over he looked into the dead face, and, in the anguish of despair, almost shrieked: "Mother, mother speak to me; your John!" But no answer came. Rising, he threw the torch away, and, seating himself on a stool by the dead body, gave full vent to his grief. As the sunlight shone through the eastern window he arose, and, kneeling down over the body of his mother, made the solemn vow that henceforth his only object in life should be with his own hands to destroy those four Indian murderers.

Three years again swiftly flew by. People had ceased to talk of the sad event. John Auten was almost forgotten. A few friends wondered where he went and how he died; they thought he must have perished or been destroyed long ago. A loving sister still hoped he would return.

Where was he? Still on his errand of vengeance. By day or night he had never swerved from the unerring purpose of that solemn vow over his mother's dead body. And he had well nigh accomplished his mission.

Three of those Indian murderers were dead, every one of them fallen by the hand of John Auten. The fourth still lived. From tribe to tribe, from wigwam to wigwam, the avenger had gone, but the search had been fruitless.

One day John Auten returned to his old home. Perhaps it was a wise Providence that brought him back. What a change around the old house! Surrounded by a luxuriant growth of weeds, the entrance was almost choked with thorns and briers.

He entered it. The tragedy of three years ago came back like a reality of that day. There again seemed to lie his noble mother. The old love came back stronger than ever, and renewed its demand for vengeance. He resolved to leave the house more than ever determined that the last murderer should die.

Just then he heard a sound. A crashing of weeds and shrubbery as if some person or animal were rushing through.

A step was heard at the door. Some one entered. In the dim light he saw the outline of a man. It was an Indian warrior! And, oh, horror! it was the fourth and last living assassin, who, three years before, in that very house, took away the light and joy of the home. With a shout of triumph John Auten sprang on the Indian, who was the more powerful. He grasped the long locks of his now deadly enemy, and raised his knife for the dreadful blow.

There was at the same moment a flash at the open door; the sharp ring of a musket. The Indian loosed his hold on Auten, tottered and was falling, but, before he fell, Auten's knife was buried to the hilt in the savage breast.

Rushing through the door came John Vanderbilt, the husband of his sister Jane, who, with gun still smoking said, as he looked on their fallen foe: "Well John, we both gave him a dose." Auten made no reply. Only a look of contempt was cast upon his fallen enemy, and then he turned and went into the forest.

Some time passed away. Again was heard the query: What had become of John Auten? No one, not even his own relatives, knew. They supposed that now, having fulfilled his vow and having nothing more to live for, he had taken his own life.

Some time after it was said that the old, neglected, deserted log cabin had an occupant. Smoke was observed issuing from the chimney, and it was reported that a man had been seen in and around the building. One of the neighbors being less superstitious than others, determined to investigate the rumors; went to the old house, entered in and found a miserable wreck of humanity; an old, emaciated man—Aûten. Reason was dethroned. Some inward impulse had led him back to the old home to spend the rest of his days in solitude.

For a number of years he continued to live in the old cabin, refusing the oft repeated entreaties of an affectionate sister to make his home with her. He would not go out. Rarely was he seen by any person, and then only by those who intruded on his solitude. To all who came to see him he appeared as a quiet, innocent old man, bereft of reason, who had no interest in humanity, from whom all affection, ambition and desire for worldly things had passed away. He asked no favors of friends; he feared not the wrath of enemies. He was a hermit! Shut up from the curious gaze and association of the world that seemed to be his only desire in life.

Every day his wants were attended to by his faithful sister who lived in the adjoining house only a few rods away, but only the stern necessities of life would he receive. The plainest food and clothing, wood for a fire on the hearth; these were his only needs. Not even the comforts of a bed would he accept, but, in a large hogshead lying on the floor and open to the fire, here he slept, his only covering being a quantity of wool into which he crawled like an animal, using it for bed and covering.

Early on the morning of February 11, 1809, Mrs. Vanderbilt, as was her custom, went to see her brother, and carry him some article of food. She found him lying in the snow near the house unconscious, almost frozen. Around the house were his tracks in the snow, as though in the darkness of night he had gone out, and, on returning, had lost his way and could not find the door.

He was carried into the house and a physician called, but the doctor said it was too late; recovery was impossible. In about an hour Auten opened his eyes and looked into the face of his sister, who sat watching him. At first his senses seemed to be confused, but suddenly the long-lost reason returned, and then, in a clear, distinct voice he said: "Jane, sister, I am dying! I know all! I remember all—all!" There was a faint struggle, a groan, and with the holy word "mother" on his lips, the spirit of John Auten, the "Old Hermit of the Raritan" went to join his parent in the better land.

In this strange story of the old hermit there is nothing unreal or impossible. All the history of the Auten and Vanderbilt families in Somerset county, the records of the Auten family, the memory of the older citizens of Franklin township in relating what they had heard from their fathers, bear testimony to the leading facts as narrated above. Where recently lived Mrs. Beebe, and where once lived the gallant Commander Craven, whose sad fate on Mobile Bay many must remember, on that very site was the "Hermitage," the home of "John Auten, the Hermit," and a short distance west, in the corner of the roads leading to Middlebush and New Brunswick, there was the Vanderbilt homestead.

END OF BIBLE RECORD

This Bible was a very exciting and historical find for our society, and we are deeply indebted to John Yuhasz for his continual "searching out" of these old treasures. Abraham Auten's son John entered the Civil War from St. Joseph Co as a member of Co. I, 9th Regt., Ind. Vols., for 3 months service. His patriotism was so great, he volunteered for a scouting expedition his unit was not detailed for, and was killed 10 July 1861 while on this duty at Bealington, Va. His death was the first war fatality from this county. His body was brought home and on 2 Aug 1861 was laid to rest in City Cemetery with full military honors. Newspaper accounts say at least 5,000 people attended the memorial service. The oldest grand army post in the state, Auten Post No. 8, Dept. of Ind., G.A.R., was named in his honor.

There were two early Auten families in St. Joseph Co. William Auten purchased land here as early as Oct. 1836. Abraham Auten does not appear to have moved here until just before the birth of his son John in 1840, notwithstanding the pencil[illegible] notation in the Bible stating he with his family arrived in 1836. The "Family Record" pages of the Bible appear to be a true record written at the time of the fact or soon thereafter. Abraham's first deed, recorded here in 1840, was executed in 1837 and states he was of Montgomery Co, Ohio.

That deed shows Abraham purchasing land from the heirs of Moses Auten, dec'd. Moses was the assignee of a William Auten, who had owned Certificate #1468, dated 24 Oct 1831, for Michigan Road lands described as the E½, SW¼, Sec 8, Twp 36, R2E, containing 79 69/100 acres. Abraham's deed was dated 8 Nov 1837. The heirs of Moses Auten were Thomas Auten, wf Mary; John Auten, wf Matilda; George Ward, wf Letty (Auten); John Snider, wf Mary (Auten); Eliza Auten and Hetty Jane Auten, all of Hamilton Co, Ohio (Nov 1837); Oliver Vantuyl, wf Mary (Auten) of Montgomery Co, Ohio (Dec 1837); Anny Auten of Hamilton Co, Ohio (Apr 1853) and William Auten, wf Sarah (Wharton) of St. Joseph Co, Indiana. Abraham sold this property to Bennet N. Engal (Engle) 5 Nov 1852. Quit claim deeds from Anny Auten dated 13 Apr. 1853 and the Heirs of William Auten, dec'd. dated 16 July 1853 cleared the title to Mr. Engle. Abraham bought and sold other property from time to time as did most of the pioneers. He was possessed of 60 acres at the time of his death. A "suit" filed in St. Joseph Circuit Court divided this property equally between his two daughters by his second wife.

~~The heirs at law of William Auten, dec'd (1853) were his widow, Sarah, Joshua Auten, William Lassett, wf Amy Ann (Auten), and Thomas J. Skyles, wf Mary Jane (Auten). His other children were minors when he died but were named in their mother's will probated 20 Feb 1873, and were John Henry, Walter (I believe he is Mahlon Walter), Charity, Anna, Elizabeth America (Auten) Ritter, Ann Eliza (Auten) Williams and Samantha (who married Thomas J. Moffitt 21 Aug 1873, St. Joseph Co, Ind. A son, William Henry died 5 Dec. 1851, and is buried by his parents in Sumption Prairie Cemetery.~~

~~Abraham Auten's naming a son Oliver Vantuyl Auten and Moses Auten having a son-in-law Oliver Vantuyl indicates a relationship between Abraham's father, Ralph Auten (1820/30 census, Hamilton Co, Ohio) and Moses Auten, the father of William Auten of St. Joseph Co, Ind. Ohio research would probably prove the relationship.~~

~~Abraham's obituary (1885) lists his survivors as Mahala, his wf of South Bend; Oliver V. Auten and oldest daughter Mrs. Bush (Lucinda) living in Wisconsin; Ralph Auten of Clyde, Ks; Wallace Auten and Amanda (later Mrs. Theodore Williams) of Powells Valley, Ore; Ada (Mrs. Joseph D. Tutt) and Antoinette Auten of South Bend. A query in the Northern Indiana Historical Society Museum Library indicates the daughter Mary was of Illinois at that time. (The query was from Mary Carroll Hilles, 2223 Glenwood, Toledo 10, Ohio, and dated 1946)~~

~~Abraham's first wife and four young children are buried in marked graves in Sumption Prairie Cemetery. Abraham, Mahala and their two daughters, as well as John, the Veteran, are buried in City Cemetery. Possibly Alfred is buried there also as he married Esther Meyers in South Bend on 7 Feb 1865, and the~~ Bible records his death in 1868. Eight of Abraham's fourteen children were living when he died, but only the two from his last marriage lived in South Bend.

Antoinette never married, and when she died in Dec 1932 her obituary states she was the last survivor of Abraham Auten's immediate family and that no descendants lived in South Bend. Her will ordered the proceeds from her estate be used to erect headstones for her parents, her sister's family and for her grave. The remaining part of the estate was to go to helpful neighbors and friends (named) and charities. It must have been at this time the old Bible was first sold. It's a miracle it has survived. It will be donated to the Northern Indiana Historical Society, South Bend.

land, which was located 443 West Division, where an lago was visited and ice cream cones were served.

The next country visited was Japan which was at 522 West Division. Here Japanese maids served tea and cookies beneath the lotus blossoms of old Japan.

Then a long jorney was taken to Holland which was three miles south of Decatur. Beautiful Holland girls served cottage cheese and crackers.

The touring party then came to Hawaii at 1357 North Monroe, where the Hawaiian dancers served a pineapple dessert.

The tour was made in twelve autos, which took the party of sixty to the various countries.

DEATHS.

AARON E. AUTEN.

Aaron E. Auten, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Auten, died Thursday afternoon at the family residence, 412 South Broadway. He was fourteen months old. His death was caused by pneumonia. The body was taken to Springfield Friday and the funeral will be held there in the church of the Assembly of God at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The burial will be in the Oak Ridge cemetery.

POLICE NOTES

Thomas Davin, 2539 East Main street, was arrested Thursday on complaint of Burt Guinn, who charged him with allowing his chickens to run at large. He gave bond to appear before Justice Baird, Nov. 16.

R. B. Beard, 617 North East avenue, was arrested on a charge of receiving stolen property.

William Gaffigan, 1159 North Union street, was arrested on a charge of possessing liquor.

F. W. Heiserman, Route 1, reported to the police that his 1926 Chevrolet roadster had been stolen from the 400 block North Water street. It carried license No. 698-201.

The sheriff at Taylorville asked the Decatur police to look for a new 1926 Ford coupe stolen here Thursday late morning train of Nov. 28.

New Safety Rule.

As a further step toward safety, the Pennsylvania has placed in effect, a measure to eliminate the last element of possible uncertainty capable of causing air brakes to become inoperative. The new measure or order dispenses entirely with the device known as the angle cock, hitherto required as a necessary part of air brake equipment.

The angle cock has been required in order to conserve the supply of compressed air in each car when detached from the train for switching or other purposes. The use of large capacity air pumps on the locomotives now renders this unnecessary by making it possible to restore the air pressure to the proper degree without delay, throughout the entire length of the train.

Still Getting Pay Checks.

Pay checks for Wabash shopmen who went out in the big strike on July 1, 1922, still come to the Decatur ticket office of the Wabash for some of these men. (The men went out on the first morning of the month after putting in just two or three hours on the beginning of a new period.

The result was that many of them had around $1.50 or perhaps a little more coming to them on pay when they struck. The hundreds of pay checks were sent to the Decatur office to pay off these men, as that is the custom of the company in the case of men quitting. For a long time most of the men refused to accept these checks as they were at the lower rate of pay than the men had demanded.

SENT BACK.

After keeping the checks for some months, they were sent back to the general offices of the company. Eventually more of the men started calling for these checks and each week a number of them were sent back to Decatur to be given to those men asking for them. Up until six or eight months ago, the old men who

DEAR ALFREDA, #4553

IT WAS A PLEASURE TALKING TO YOU THE OTHER EVENING REGARDING MY GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH ON THE AUTEN FAMILIES.

I HAVE ENCLOSED A NUMBER OF FORMS FOR YOUR IMMEDIATE FAMILIES. IF YOU WOULD BE SO KIND AS TO PROVIDE ANY INFORMATION YOU MAY HAVE THAT IS NOT SHOWN ON THE ENCLOSED FORMS, I WOULD BE MOST APPRECIATIVE. OF PARTICULAR INTEREST IS ANY INFORMATION YOU MAY HAVE ON ALFRED AUTEN'S FATHER, "SCHULYER" (SPELLING?).

IF YOU HAVE ADDRESSES AND/OR TELEPHONE NUMBERS FOR ANY INDIVIDUALS ON THE FORMS WHO ARE LIVING, PLEASE LIST THEM ON THE REVERSE SIDE OF THE RESPECTIVE FORM. YOUR ASSISTANCE IS GREATLY APPRECIATED.

ENCLOSED IS A SELF-ADDRESSED STAMPED ENVELOPE FOR YOUR CONVENIENCE IN REPLYING.

VERY TRULY YOURS,

DANIEL S. L. COMP

You might wish to contact his

I do not have his address or phone

I enjoyed working on this and hope I have been of some help. It is a tremendous undertaking and I wish you much success. If there

OLD DUTCH BETHEL

The oldest Church Record at Bethel begins in or before the year 1850, for there are death notices as of that year in its pages. On the first page is a list of twelve names, with nothing to indicate what it signifies. After two pages of financial record, we read: "The following is a list of the names of the Brethren and Sisters in Christ." It is followed by three hundred and fifteen names.

Page fifteen of this book is headed: "A list of the names of the Brethren and Sisters remaining in the church at Bethel on the 7th day of March, in the year of our Lord 1858." It contains three hundred and ninety-three names.

On page 27 of the book another list begins, without any heading. It contains two hundred and seventy names.

A new, alphabetical list begins on page 36. It is headed, "Names of all who have at any time been members of the Church of Christ at Bethel." It contains 671 names in one handwriting, plus 24 more which have been added by another scribe. From the statement which we have taken, in our history, from the County History of 1884, it is evident that this is the total list of members which Bro. Joel Dillon cited. We now give it in full.

ADVANCE SUBSCRIBERS

To the following people I wish to express my appreciation for their placing of advance subscriptions to "Owen County Cousins" - not only for the monetary assistance that it provided but for their personal vote of confidence.

Two delays in the printing - the first due to difficulties encountered with the reproduction of the photographs and the second by the sudden death of my Mother, were met with patience and understanding by those of you who showed such interest in the work. Thank you again for your consideration.

NOTES FROM THE RECORDER:

This is a personal note from your scribe. It will contain some explanations, a few complaints and some expressions of gratitude that I feel are in order before you become engrossed in the book itself.

First, "Owen County Cousins" should really be entitled "A study in preparation for Owen County Cousins", since there are still so many questions yet unanswered - such a vast amount of information to be gathered. The solution, of course, would be unlimited amounts of those precious commodities TIME and MONEY; however, this is the everlasting wail of any person who compiles this type of book.

The records of New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Indiana, Illinois, as well as Iowa, Missouri and the other states into which our families migrated should be more thoroughly researched. The Moravian-Christian Archives in Winston-Salem, North Carolina will surely one day give up the secrets needed to connect our unidentified lines and make the story whole. That will take TIME and MONEY and a researcher able to visit the Archives for a sufficient length of time to collect the data. The members of the staff at the Archives have been most cooperative and I would like to thank particularly Mrs. Eggleston who has been most helpful and gracious.

It is an especially bitter disappointment to me that the book had to be released before completion of the family of Andrew Fulk, III, which constitutes a "hole" in the family history that I dislike very much.

I have attempted to document the facts in every possible way and have assured myself and you that the lineage is correct, especially in those early years after the families came to this country. When we reach the era when our old-timers and their precious store of memories take over, their recollections, family Bibles, etc. were used; providing to a great extent the statements herein. Even so - with every effort made to insure accuracy, there will be errors, I'm sure. It is hoped that the reader will forgive (and CORRECT) these unintentional mistakes.

Most of the people contacted for family information have been very generous and prompt with their answers; however, there are some who failed to reply to requests for data on their folks and so I was unable to include those in the history. Perhaps someday when time and financial assistance are more readily available, a revised edition of this book can be produced. I sincerely hope so! Because I do hope so, I am including - in the back of your book - a family record sheet which requests that you correct or add information on your own family. If there are errors in names, dates, or comments about your group or if you have added new in-laws or grandchildren that I am unaware of, won't you complete this sheet and return it to me so that I may make corrections to the work? I would very much appreciate this.

Please remember too that the author has depended upon her "Owen County Cousins" almost completely for "local color" in Owen County. I have visited there only twice - once when I was only a child. The History of Owen County published in 1884 has been of great help in establishing background for many of the families mentioned. Cemetery inscriptions (collected by those same faithful "cousins") census records, mortality records, marriage licenses, wills, death certificates, have all been used in our collection of records.

Here let me mention that at various times throughout the compilation of our history I have heard comments like "She's making a fortune off that book" or "Seems like a lot of money for something like that" - to which my reply is to throw up my hands in disbelief!! I won't burden you with an account of the expenses - you probably wouldn't believe it anyway. Just let me say that NO ONE EVER MADE MONEY FROM SUCH A BOOK, and VERY FEW KEEP THEIR HAPPY HOMES WHILE WRITING IT. Fortunately, my family is still together but only because they are especially understanding about my personal "obsession".

As for the rewards!! I couldn't be happier about the friends I've made within this family over the past few years. My faithful, diligent, long-suffering assistants - Ruth (Hauser) Merritt, Belle Hoffman, Gladys Bielefeld, Julia Huffman, Lucile Chalfant, Rachel (Fleenor) Smith - all have contributed so much to the project. And to their husbands a special thanks!

The assembling of data has been occasionally baffling, sometimes extremely frustrating, but always interesting. Throughout the search the essential goodness of people has shown through - courthouse clerks that might well have refused to stay open that few minutes needed to find a record, the librarian who was not required to make an effort to locate that certain book, the hospitality extended by many of those people interviewed in the course of gathering information. To all these - our appreciation for your efforts.

In conclusion - it is hoped that you will enjoy the book as much as I've enjoyed putting it together. Just remember - if there are mistakes, that I, like our ancestors, am only human. But then, there's something to be said for that.

BACKGROUND & HISTORICAL BEGINNINGS

We, as descendants of the Palatinates, will appreciate the scholarly contribution which follows - written by Reverend Herman F. Vesper of St. John's Lutheran Church, Canjoharie, New York.

"Twenty-one years after the close of the devastating Thirty Years' War (1618-1648), there was born on the left bank of the Rhine River, in what is now Rhenish Bavaria, Joshua Kocherthal, the man who directed the first Palatines to America. Kockerthal became a Lutheran Minister and assisted his fellow believers at a time when persecution, plunder, and pillage ravaged the Rhine countries and laid waste whatever had survived the horrible devastation of the Thirty Years' War.

In 1668 war broke out again and in 1673 Louis XIV of France began his marauding expeditions for the purpose of extirpating the heretics. Destructive raids laid waste the Palatine countryside and this ruthless pillage continued until 1688 when the French King himself entered the land to "make it a wilderness" as he declared. The War of the Spanish Secession (1701-1713) followed, but it touched only lightly the already devastated country.

Added to the horrors of war, there came further to harass the unfortunate Palatines the unusually severe winter of 1708-09. Vineyards and orchards were blasted by the cold; birds froze on the wing and fires failed to warm the shivering population. Furthermore, oppressive ecclesiastical regulations made still more unbearable the life of these "poor Palatines". ***

Kockerthal went to Frankfort-on-the-Main in January, 1708, to obtain from a Mr. Davenant, a British resident, passes and money for a trip to England. Davenant made the consent of the Elector-Palatine a condition of such assistance, and when his permission was not forthcoming, Kockerthal with some 50 to 60 Germans, left in March for London by way of Holland. Queen Anne was apprised of their extreme poverty and granted them each a shilling a day toward their subsistence. This royal example of benevolence inspired others to come to the aid of the refugees and soon their physical needs were sufficiently satisfied.

England desired to extend her frontiers in the New World and there she also sought for raw materials with which to fit out her royal Majesty's ships. Concluding, therefore, that these homeless and distressed, though "honest and laborious" Palatines might profitably be engaged in the manufacture of naval stores, such as ship masts, tar and pitch, the Board of Trade resolved to transport them to the islands of Jamaica and Antigua. However, after more mature consideration, it was determined to send them to New York.

Finally, about the middle of October, the "Globe" was ready to cross the Atlantic with the first Palatine refugees on board, a voyage of no less consequence to the colonization of the future American Republic than that of the "Mayflower" 88 years before. Scant justice has been done by our historians toward these hardy Rhinelanders who, robust in body and strong in heart and soul, accustomed to hardship, poverty, and toil, conscientious and honest toward God and man, were willing rather to face the unknown but peaceful American wilderness than political, economic and religious degradation in the war-wasted lands of Europe.

Kocherthal and his compatriots crossed the mighty ocean. For eleven long weeks the "Globe" was at the mercy of the wind and waves. Yet the Palatines were comforted. They were encouraged by their good Captain Congreve and their faithful pastor.

The latter preached to them and administered the sacrament. He baptized the babies (note-one of these being a child of our immigrant ancestor Andreas Volck) who were born on board ship. He counselled with Governor Lovelace concerning the administration of the future colony and the division of the land. In this official the Palatines possessed a warm friend.

At last the shores of America were sighted and the "Globe" sailed into the harbor of New York. Then, after casting anchor off Manhatten Island so that the new Governor might land and attend to certain formalities, the little ship entered the mouth of the river discovered by Hendrick Hudson a century before. For sixty miles the voyage continued up the lordly stream, the first signs of winter already visible on both banks. With the close of the year their arduous sea journey also drew to its close.

On New Year's Day, 1709, the vessel anchored at the confluence of Quassaic Creek with the river, a pleasant site on the western shore. Here Kocherthal and 53 emigrants, including his wife, Sibylla Charlotta, and their three children, landed.

It was necessary to build rude huts for shelter from the wintry cold and the ambitious men, young and sturdy and skilled, lost no time in taking their axes and hammers to hand. Their average age was between 25 and 40, only one was 52, and among them were vineyard keepers, carpenters, smiths, weavers, cabinet makers, and masons. (Note - Andreas Volck is listed as a husbandman). These doughty pioneers named the district Newburgh after a city in the upper Palatinate. It contained 2,190 acres which had been assigned to them by royal decree but the deed to this land came into their possession only in 1719 through the so-called "German Patent".

Before the summer of 1709, Governor Lovelace had died and as Kocherthal had not yet received the deed to this land, and the colonists were in need of further help from the Crown, he sent a petition to England, dated 6/29/1709, asking for a free passage to London. He then sailed back to England on behalf of the colonists.

From London, Kocherthal returned in June, 1710, his mission resulting in better conditions for the Palatines on the Quassaic. A church was built on the "glebe" designated for religious purposes. The Queen donated a bell and Kocherthal set to work to build up the New World Parish. Three villages were established on the western side of the river - Georgetown, Elizabethtown, and Newtown. Across the Hudson were Annsbury, Haysbury, Queensbury, and Hunterstown.

For ten years Kocherthal labored among his countrymen, ever intent upon their material and spiritual welfare. At West Camp, on 12/27/1719 he suddenly sickened and died. A longer journey than the one to England was his to undertake, and that when he was but 50 years of age.

The rigors and privations of pioneer life would not permit them to become old. They were simply worn out before the Biblical allotment of "three score years and ten".

"The Palatinate Emigration" tells that Reverend Joshua Kocherthal was the leader of a band of 41 persons from the Palatinate who came to London in 1708 and were sent to New York with Governor Lovelace as described previously. They first settled in Newburgh on the Hudson River. The data given below was compiled from the following sources;

New York Colonial Documents; Vol. 52
Doc. Hist. III, 543; C.C. 1706-1708, 722

These, then, were the hardy pioneers of the German emigration to this country, who joined a forceful, sympathetic leader and ventured forth into a land completely unknown to them. They knew only that they must have freedom from poverty, degradation, persecution - and most important of all reasons for this uprooting of home and family, they longed for the opportunity to follow their own religious beliefs.

So, we see that ANDREW FULK (VOLCK), father of our family line, was among the adventurous party that started the movement to America in 1708. With him he brought his wife, ANNA CATHERINE (MERCKEL) and his three small children. Another child, CARLOSS, was born on the trip across and as you read of the trials they faced as they traveled in this new land you may well feel a pride of ancestry in a man of such courage and religious conviction. His was, no doubt, a strength that was rare even in his own time - and relatively unheard of today!

As we progress in this story of our ancestors, it is clear that our past speaks not only in many languages but with many voices - sometimes heroically, sometimes frivolously, many times in tones of despair and deprivation, but always with something fascinating to hear.

In this study of our forbearers then, let us learn something of human history, of population movements during this country's growth, of cultural patterns as they applied to our predecessors, of biology, sociology, and even of charity and the literal brotherhood of man.

Since repeated reference is made in the studies of the German immigrants to the spoken language they used, an explanatory note is in order. This language was actually not pure German but a dialect which came to be called "Pennsylvania Dutch". Of course, it was in no way "Dutch" nor was it even colored with the language of Holland.

The Germans who settled in Pennsylvania came from the various sections of the upper and middle Rhine Valley. The Palatinates were most numerous, with immigrants from Wurttemburg and Switzerland providing the next largest number. These people spoke German dialects peculiar to the sections from which they came, and in the course of a few generations these speech patterns began to merge into a dialect familiarly known as "Pennsylvania Dutch" - or more properly, "Pennsylvania German". But even in this blend, the speech characteristics of the Palatinates have predominated.

Frugality, ingenuity, and a willingness for hard work brought definite improvement to the life of these hardy pioneers. Wherever a stream could be utilized for a dependable water power supply, grist and sawmills were soon built. Iron stoves began to take the place of the open fireplace and cooking and cider presses served to make more extensive use of the fruit and apple orchards.

Within us all there dwells - certainly - a spark of conscience that was so evident in the lives of our forefathers. It tells us that respectability, work, propriety, charity, etc. are qualities to be desired. And with it there is a tendency to prefer those words "pioneer", "adventure", "discover". This indicates that we are not really so far removed from those sturdy, solid citizens who are responsible for what we are today. As pioneers they achieved a certain style of their own - in many things; architecture, household goods, even their way of life in this new land.

Though we lack a section on Coat of Arms in "Owen County Cousins", the "good name" acquired by our families is something to be proud of, to protect, - our badge of family honor. As the worthy accomplishments of the generations before us have given it dignity and splendor, it has become the most treasured possession of those who bear it. Like the coat of arms in battle, the name we bear is borne through every event of our lives and through the lives of our descendants. Our appreciation to those forefathers who have gone before should be shown in our desire to keep the name honorable and great - to live up to the heritage they left us.

THE RAWLEY FAMILY

Data gathered on the Rawley folks has come from courthouse records, cemetery inscriptions, family information from personal knowledge, Bible records, obituaries, etc. - along with information supplied by Mr. Jim Rawley, a descendant in this line, Mrs. Belle Hoffman of Bloomfield, Indiana, Mrs. Gladys Bielefeld, Tolono, Ill., county histories. We might even be able to take this line back a generation if we knew the connection between the Elijah and John Rawley whose biographical sketches are included in the history of Owen County, Ind. Even so, we do know that the family contained many persons of sterling character, solid citizens - some quite well off financially and from all indications, "just a lot of fine folks".

Excerpts from Counties Clay and Owen in Indiana:
"As early as 1821 hills and bluffs on the west side of Eel River were settled by Peter and John Cooprider, Robert Grose and James Delay - by 1822 came James Briley, Elijah Rawley and Elijah Mayfield in Lewis Twp. Clay County."
"Elijah Rawley pitched his tent on the hillside at the confluence of Splung Creek with the river where, in the summer of 1823 he built the first mill ever put up on Eel River, which for many years cracked the corn for the pioneer settlers through a circuit of many miles."
"Elijah Rawley, a native of Kentucky, settled near Old Hill, where he entered a large tract of land and in after years became very wealthy."
Elijah Rawley was commissioned Clerk of the Court 6/6/1825;on 30th of June 1825 he was also commissioned Recorder. He served in these capacities until September 22, 1831.

John Rawley is listed as a teacher in 1882-83 in Van Buren County. This John Rawley was the son of John and Millie (Drake) Rawley, the former of England and the latter of German descent. He traced his ancestry to Sir Walter Raleigh, the orthography of the name having been changed. He could recall the time when he wore buckskins and moccasins and used the hominy morter and hand corn mill. He owned (1884) 400 acres of land, a commanding residence and improvements and was one of the leading farmers and most respected citizens of the county. So goes the biographical material on just a few of the Rawley men. John Rawley, just mentioned, had a brother William Rawley, who was also a teacher and perhaps these are the individuals for whom the Rawley School was named.

I have given these brief sketches - not because they have definitely been related to our earliest known member of the Rawley family - but because they do give us an idea of the type of people they were; industrious, intelligent, pioneers who set the pace for those families who were to arrive later in this area. Any descendant can well be proud of these early settlers in Owen County and the surrounding area and it is hoped that the brief outline that follows will encourage a more elaborate, detailed account of the lineage to be developed. They are mentioned often in the old records as having been members of the church and helpers to those less fortunate than themselves.

Were there other children born to John Rawley (#1) of these marriages? The Owen County, Ind. records also yield a marriage license for a John Rawley to ELIZABETH WEBLY on 10/4/1866, though it is uncertain at this time just who this John Rawley was.

4. EIVAN RAWLEY Born 11/2/1831; died 7/9/1907; buried Dutch Bethel;mrd :ELIZABETH WILLEY - the widow of Jacob Edwards. "She was born 10/14/1843 in Carroll County, Ohio and departed this life 6/14/1929, being 85 yrs of age. Her father and mother migrated from Ohio to near Splinter Ridge, where they and the William McCreary family became some of the pioneers of Owen County, Indiana. There were nine children of the Willey family and she was the last of all to die. She, as well as many another during the Civil War period, toiled at home and in the fields to help support the large family and feed the soldiers. Although attending Church at Splinter Ridge she believed in the Christian baptism and she,with several others, were baptized near the OLD JAKE FULK PLACE during a revival in that community and about forty years before her death placed her membership at Dutch Bethel, and no place on earth did she love better than here, and if possible attended church here. In 1865 she married Jacob Edwards of Patricksburg, going on horseback to SQUIRE GEORGE LONG's where the marriage occurred. (Note: Squire George Long later became her brother-in-law, after her marriage to Eivan Rawley whose half-sister Nancy was the wife of George Long). Edwards taught school and they made their home in Stubenville. Three children were born to them (See Willey lineage). Jacob Edwards died in Illinois where they had moved. Returning to Indiana she strove to support herself and two remaining children.

In 1872 she married Eivan Rawley and to them one child was born, CLARA E. with whom she has made her home since Mr. Rawley's death nearly 20 years ago. No child could be truer to a mother than Clara has been and through her declining years of almost constant sickness she has constantly administered to her mother and left nothing undone that hands could do. God alone, not human hands, can reward such kindness. You all knew "Aunt Lizzie" and her life is an open record for all. She left three children, 15 grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn her departure."

CHILD OF EIVAN & ELIZABETH (WILLEY) (EDWARDS) RAWLEY:

Note: The writer welcomes all additional information on these families surnamed Rawley since they were so often connected with our Fulk family. Earlier data on the background of the group would be most interesting since they are said to have been part of the SIR WALTER RALEIGH family. Of course, the Long family seems to be related by blood and/or marriage to almost every group covered by our story, and correspondence from these individuals would be especially appreciated.

Dear Mr. Comp.

I have looked and looked for the info for you, but evidently I have destroyed it - As I remember it was from Pownal, Bennington Co Vermont and the 2nd item was from England - In any event it wouldn't hurt to write to Pownal and ask for a record of the marriage of Ora Auten -

Also I think Chas Gamets mother Grace Pearl Auten was a mormon as Chas Gamet was - So you might, if you haven't already, consult the LDS Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Chas has his mother Grace born in Nebr - her father John D Auten III b. 11 Jan 1836 in Carrol Co Ohio. John D Auten II b ca 1811 - Does not seem to know where -

He also says his grandfather was a Civil War Veteran who enlisted in Indiana He was also one of the subjects of a write-up by the Indiana Historical Society and was in the most marched outfit in Civil War -

This is all I can seem to learn for you hope this helps - Sincerely

Bow Valley. Post office established December 11, 1871; discontinued April 4, 1903. Named for the creek on which it was located by postmaster Conrad Wisner.

Branch. Post office established August 27, 1884; discontinued October 12, 1895. Probably named for its location between two branches of the main creek.

Case. Former station on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad; probably named for A. B. Case, an early settler and Civil War veteran.

Center Bow. Post office established February 9, 1872; discontinued May 24, 1875. Probably named for its location near the center branch of Bow Creek.

Claramont. Post office established June 12, 1884; name changed to Laurel May 28, 1892. Claramont is a misnomer, since the name presented by Louis Tolles to the Post Office Department was Claremont. Through a clerical error the letter "a" was inserted in lieu of the letter "e". Townspeople and the North Western Railroad used Claremont. Tolles, an early Cedar County settler from Ascutneyville, Vermont, who lived close to Claremont, New Hampshire, chose the name Claremont for the new town on land donated by Roger T. O'Gara. When the new site of Laurel was platted, some businesses in Claremont moved to the new site, and the North Western Railroad used Claremont as a flag station between Coleridge and Laurel.

Claremont. See Claramont.

Coleridge. Peak population (1920), 674. Post office name changed from Lawnridge September 10, 1883. Named in honor of Lord Coleridge from England, who visited the town site. Mr. Whitten, general superintendent of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad, named the town.

Constance. Post office established April 28, 1888; discontinued April 3, 1909. Origin of name not learned.

Curlew. Post office established December 11, 1871; discontinued October 7, 1872. Supposedly promoted by easterners but never got beyond the platting stage. Origin of name not learned.

ORGANIZATION.

Columbia is the oldest born of the townships of Hamilton county. Upon its soil, as originally constituted, was planted the first colony in the Miami Purchase—the first white settlement, indeed, anywhere in the Ohio valley between Limestone or Maysville and the falls of the Ohio, otherwise the mouth of Beargrass creek, or Louisville. From this lodgment of Major Stites and his people near the mouth of the Little Miami, annd his designation of the cluster of cabins by the patriotic title then (1788) much more in vogue than now, the subsequent township of course derived its name. The history of that settlement, and to some extent of the gallant men who founded it, will be told very fully in the chapter devoted to Spencer township, with which Columbia, as a country village, was last associated, and to whose history its own seems properly to belong.

Columbia township was erected by the court of general quarter sessions of the peace, in 1791, at the same time Cincinnati and Miami townships were formed; but seems to claim priority by virtue of its cattle brand, which was fixed to be the letter A, the others taking respectively the letters B and C. The boundaries of this town were then assigned as follows:

"Beginning at the foot of the second meridian east of Cincinnati, on the Ohio bank; thence north to the third entire (or military) range; thence east to the Little Miami; thence down the Miami to Ohio river; thence down the Ohio to place of beginning."

This was a vast township, larger than some counties are now. Cincinnati and Miami townships, with it, included the whole of Hamilton county on the Purchase, south of the military range. Beyond their north line, in the Miami country, there was probably at this time not a single white settler, and the extensive boundaries of the township were supposed to be sufficient to include all probable settlement on the east side of the Purchase for years to come. It was not many years, however, before the call was made for the erection of townships in the further tracts of the Purchase now covered by Butler and Montgomery counties, as settlement rapidly progresssd in them.

Upon the reconstruction of the Hamilton county townships in 1803, after the erection of Butler county by the first State legislature, the boundaries of Columbia were thus changed:

"Commencing at the southeast corner of Cincinnati township, thence north to the northwest corner of section thirty-six in fractional range two, township four; thence east to the Little Miami; thence south to the Ohio; thence westward to the place of beginning."

This arrangement gave the township just the entirety of its present territory, with the whole of the later Spencer township, including so much of the city as is now east of "the second meridian east" of the old city of Concinnati. The voters were at this time required to meet at the house of Samuel Muchmore, upon the present site of Madisonville, and elect three justices of the peace.

The first officers of the township, under appointment of the quarter sessions court in 1791, were as follows:

Ephraim Kibby, clerk; John Gerrard, John Morris, constables; Luke Foster, overseer of roads; James Matthews, overseer of the poor.

The following memoranda for justices of the peace for Columbia township have also been found:

1819, John Jones, Abner Applegate; 1825, Abner Applegate, William Baxter, James Armstrong; 1829, William Baxter, Batia Evans, Eleazer Baldwin, John T. Jones; 1865-8, Francis A. Hill, William Tingley, James Julien; 1859-70, F. A. Hill, Leonidas Bailey, L. A. Hendricks; 1871, L. A. Hendricks, C. W. Magill, Louis W. Clason; 1872-3, Clason, Magill, Hill; 1874, same, with E. W. Bowman; 1875-7, Clason, Hill, Tingley; 1878, Clason, Hill, William Arnold, Charles S. Burns; 1879, Clason, Arnold, George Reiter; 1880, Clason, Reiter.

GEOGRAPHY.

When Spencer township was formed Columbia was cut down to its present limits, and lost the famous old village from which it took its noble and high-sounding name. The township is now bounded on the west by the "second meridian line" aforesaid, to a point about a mile and a quarter north of the Ohio, separating it from Mill Creek township; on the north by the old line of 1803, from the northwest corner of section thirty-six in the fractional range two, township four, to the Little Miami, dividing it from Sycamore and Symmes townships; on the south by that river, Spencer township, and a part of Cincinnati, and on the east by the same stream, which separates it from Anderson township and a short front of Clermont county. It is nine miles long on its north line, which is the greatest length of the township; and but four miles and a quarter in its shortest length, at the south of the township. It is five miles broad on the west, and for more than four miles thence to the eastward, and is then of variously reduced width, according to the windings of the Little Miami, until, on its eastern border, it is less than two and a half miles wide. The Little Miami River, with its ins and outs, has a bank of about nine miles in this township. Forty sections, twenty-nine whole, and eleven fractional, are included in the present territory of Columbia, making eighteen thousand eight hundred and sixty acres, of which two hundred and thirty-nine are covered by the site of Madisonville. They are much more regular in their boundaries than sections in most other parts of the Symmes Purchase—thanks, perhaps, to the superior skill or care of Major Stites and his surveyors—and each full section comprises exactly or very nearly a square mile.

The topography of Columbia township, for picturesque and varied character, and eligibility for suburban purposes, is scarcely equaled anywhere else in Hamilton county. The valley of the Little Miami stretches broadly along its eastern and southeastern districts, with the heights beyond Milford and Newtown in the distance, and others closer to the course of the stream—in one instance, near the northeast corner of Anderson township, coming down close to the course of the stream. Across the entire length of the township, in a general east and west direction, spreads another great, deep valley, evidently very ancient in its formation, but now with no large stream in its bed—probably an old channel through which the waters of Mill creek found their way to the Little Miami. The township may be said to consist pretty nearly of this and the Miami valleys. The result of the great operations of nature, by which they have been channeled, has been to afford a very large number and variety of beautiful sites for human habitation. Indian Hill and the Norwood Heights, Pleasant Ridge, Oakley, Madisonville, Mount Lookout, and indeed, almost every square mile of the higher ground in the township, are excellently adapted to the purposes of suburban residence, as well as for farming. Neighborhood to a great city has naturally called attention to these advantages, and every one of its numerous villages has more or less of the suburban character.

Apart from the Little Miami, Columbia has no stream of size within it or upon its borders. Duck creek, and perhaps a dozen other brooks and rivulets, traverse some part of the township, most of them toward the Little Miami, but two or three, in the northwestern part, making their way to the valley of Mill creek. The Marietta & Cincinnati railroad enters the township near Norwood, about a mile and three-quarters from the southwest corner, traverses about half its breadth on a general east and west line to Madisonville, whence the route makes rapidly northward and northeastward to its emergence from the township beyond Madeira station, near the southeast corner of Sycamore township. About seven miles of the course of this railroad lie in Columbia. The Little Miami railroad has about the same length along or near the river in this township, entering at the southeast corner, at Red Bank station, and proceeding by the Batavia junction, Plainville, and several other points, to its exit from the county at the northeastern corner, opposite East Milford, and a mile and a half further, crossing the river and leaving the county altogether. The Cincinnati & Eastern narrow-gauge railroad tracks also intersect the southern tier of sections; but its arrangements for entering Cincinnati from the north and west are not yet consummated, and the road is not much used west of Batavia junction, where it connects with the Little Miami railroad. The Cincinnati Northern narrow-gauge, now in course of construction, crosses the township from south to north, entering from the direction of Walnut Hills, and passing through Norwood. Several fine turnpikes, as the Cincinnati & Wooster, once the main line of communication eastward; the Madison, the Montgomery, and others, with many well-kept, ordinary wagon-roads, add to the facilities of communication with the city and surrounding country. Upon some of them, as over the Montgomery pike to Pleasant Ridge, lines of omnibuses are regularly run to and from Cincinnati.

ANCIENT REMAINS.

One of the richest fields for antiquarian research in the world, for the extent of it, is presented in this township, notably in the eastern and southeastern parts of it. It has been industriously and very intelligently worked during the few years last past by the members of the Madisonville Scientific and Literary society; and in this sketch we freely use the results of their labors, particularly as set forth in Dr. Charles L. Metz's article on the pre-historic monuments of the Little Miami valley, in the Journal of the Cincinnati Society of Natural History for October, 1878, and his chart accompanying the paper.

1. Dr. Metz and his co-laborers arrange the works in groups. Group A is mostly upon the property of Charles F. Stites, one mile west of Plainville, between the Wooster turnpike and the Little Miami railroad and river, upon the second bottom or plateau, in section nine. This plateau has a general elevation above the river of nearly two hundred feet; and above it, at a height varying from ten to twenty-five feet, is a narrow ridge, mainly composed of reddish sand, upon which the most notable work of the group is situated. This and the remaining works in this locality are thus described by Dr. Metz:

Commencing at the east end of the ridge, and in a wood known as "Stites' grove," we find an earthwork consisting of a circle, central tumulus, and an oval-shaped tumulus impinging on the outer southeast edge of the circle. The following extract, from an article entitled "The Mound Builders," by Mr. Florien Giauque, published in the Harvest Home Magazine, August, 1876, describes this work as follows:

"In the grove in the 'picnic woods' owned by Mr. Charles Stites, of Columbia, on the top of this ridge, there is a circular enclosure made by a ditch and an earthen embankment outside of and immediately adjoining this ditch, and no doubt made of the material which was taken from it. From the bottom of this ditch to the top of the embankment, the present height is five and one-half feet; the diameter of the ditch from deepest cut on either side is seventy-five feet; the enclosing embankment, from crest to crest, is one hundred and five feet; and the diameter of the entire work, from outside to outside, is about one hundred and forty-five to one hundred and fifty feet. On the east this embankment is enlarged into a regular mound, about forty-eight feet in diameter and about six feet high above the adjacent ground. At the southeast part of the enclosure there is left an entrance-way about ten feet wide—that is, there is here neither ditch nor embankment. This entrance faces and is about forty feet away from the edge of the terrace or bluff, which is here quite steep, and about one hundred feet (estimated) high above the river, which is here quite near the foot of the bluff. The edges of the terrace and ridge coincide here."

The ridge to the east of this work slopes gently until it reaches the general level of the plateau. On this slope numerous relics are found. The above-described work was explored by Mr. Giauque and others, and several fine relics were found. The finding of one he describes as follows:

"One of the trenches was begun about the north of the mound, and the writer [Mr. Giauque], while working here, hardly a foot below the surface of the mound and about seven feet from the centre of it, found a very fine relic. It is a tube six inches long, a little less than an inch in diameter, made of crinoidal limestone, highly polished, though somewhat coated and discolored in places by the oxide of iron which has collected on it during its long burial. The hole extends entirely through from end to end, but grows rapidly smaller near one end, being about five-eighths of an inch in diameter most of the distance, and about three-sixteenths of an inch at the smaller end This relic is, in fact, a cylinder for about four and one-half inches of its length to a diamond-shaped perforation."

I have measured the circumference of some of the larger trees growing on this work. An oak has nine and one-half feet, beech eight and one-half feet in circumference on the central tumulus, maple six and three-tenths feet, an oak six and seven-tenths feet in circumference.

Northwest of this work, and about two hundred feet distant, at the foot of the sand-ridge, and on the general level of the plateau, is a mound which has been recently explored. Its diameter east to west is forty-five feet, elevation seven feet. An oak tree on its western slope has eight and seven-tenths feet, and a beech on its eastern slope five feet of a circumference. An interesting account of the exploration of this mound, by Mr. Giauque, was published in the Harvest Home Magazine, in the article from which I quoted above. The circumstances of exploration are of considerable interest to the archæologist, and I make the following extracts from Mr. Giauque's article:

"About eleven feet from the outside and two feet above the original surface, the shovel, hitherto working pretty freely in clayey sand, struck the first big stone. It was a flat limestone, possibly brought from the neighboring hill about a half a mile away, as there was none nearer; and it was much reddened and softened by fire, the fossil shells in it being whitened or more nearly calcined than the other parts. This, together with charcoal and ashes, pieces of bone, pieces of bowlder broken by fire, were very encouraging indications of a 'find.' Further digging showed that the rock struck was the part of a stone arch, rudely made of undressed limestone.

"That part of the arch first found was removed, and under it was found a skeleton, the tibia (shin-bone) being the first part of it discovered. The arch was then entirely uncovered, the earth removed between it and the skeleton, and the skeleton taken out.

If the mound had been divided into four parts, by drawing a line through its centre from north to south and another similarly from east to west, the arch would have been entirely within the northwest section of the mound, and the skeleton which it covered lay with its head nearly towards the northeast (N. E. E.) Perpendicular sections of the mound, as dug away that day, showed from the bottom upwards:

"1. The skeleton resting on or near the original surface, which was a sandy clay, quite compact and hard.

"2. About a foot of sandy earth, possibly mixed with ashes, but no charcoal nor pieces of bowlder or bones, and, especially in places where the rock above had relieved it from pressure, quite loose and soft.

"3. The arch, hitherto so called for convenience, but perhaps hardly entitled to the name. This was made, as has been said, of undressed but flat limestone, averaging about twenty to thirty and six to eight inches in length and breadth, four inches in thickness, and approximately most of them being about a medium between these extremes. The arch was about seven feet long and five and a half or six wide, its highest part being in a line with and directly over the body, and arching downward on either side till its edges on the right and left of the skeleton nearly reached the clay on which the skeleton lay. But the stones were not set up on edge, so that the structure, while really an arch in form, was probably not self-sustaining. It contained three layers of stone, one over the other, making about a foot in thickness.

"4. A thin layer of sandy earth, about one inch on the highest part, and increasing in thickness toward the sides.

"5. Charcoal and ashes, the charcoal not plenty nor in large pieces, this indicating that the fire had burned out before being covered up with earth. This fire was hot enough to color all the top rocks, as mentioned of the first one found.

"6. A layer of sand about fifteen inches thick, with pieces of fire-cracked bowlder, burnt limestone, and pieces of human bones, much decayed—or were they partially burned?

"7. Another layer of charcoal and ashes similar to the one below, about three-fourths of an inch thick.

"8. Clayey sand to the top, so soft as to be shovelled without loosening with a pick, and nowhere over two and a half feet thick. . . . No ornaments or implements of any kind were found in this mound."

West and to the south of this tumulus, and on the same continuous sand-ridge mentioned above, are four or five elevations or tumuli, with an average height of three to four feet, being from two to three hundred feet apart. The ridge is here under cultivation; numbers of relics, flint chips, and broken bowlders, are ploughed up on this ridge.

Northwest of these tumuli, and on the general level of the plateau, one-fourth of a mile distant, is a mound which has a circumference at base of two hundred feet, and an elevation of seven feet. It is as yet unexplored, but cultivated annually.

Four hundred yards to the northeast of this mound, and at the junction of the Wooster and Madison turnpikes, can yet be traced a circular work, which has a circumference of six hundred feet; twenty years ago, I am told by an old settler, the circle had an elevation at that time of three feet, and there was a mound four feet in the centre; at present it is almost obliterated. Its northern side in places has an elevation of eight to twelve inches. On the south and eastern side, the work can be traced by the yellow color of the soil. The northeast side is occupied by the Madison turnpike.

Continuing on the southwestward of the small tumuli, and along the previously described sand ridge, we come to what is known as the 'Pottery Field.' Here the ridge slopes gently to the south and southeast, with an elevation of from sixty to eighty feet above the level of the Little Miami river. This field is a plateau of about four acres in extent, sloping back to the higher ground. On this plateau fragments of pottery are found in great abundance. Flint chips, arrow points, broken bowlders, burnt limestone, and the shells of the fresh-water muscle (unio), are found all over the surface. Human remains have been found in the adjoining ravines and on the slopes; the graves were isolated and shallow, and the method of burial was not uniform. Bones of various wild animals are also found.

Two hundred yards north of the Pottery field are several small tumuli. The largest has a circumference at base of about one hundred feet, height five and one-half feet; this mound has been dug into, but not yet explored. The Pottery Field, and also the tumulus, are situated in sections nine, Columbia township, in what is known as Ferris' woods, in 'Still Home Hollow.' The largest trees on the Pottery Field measure as follows: A walnut, fifteen and one-half feet in circumference; an oak, twelve feet in circumference; a maple, nine and one-half feet in circumference, and an elm twelve feet in circumference.

A quarter of a mile farther west, in section fifteen, on the estate of Joseph Ferris, and just southeast of the family homestead, is a circular work, with an inside ditch and a central elevation. Its circumference is about two hundred feet; diameter from east to west about sixty-five feet. This work is almost obliterated. It is distant from the river half a mile, and elevated above it about eighty feet.

2. The group B is situated partly in sections fifteen and twenty-one, in this township. The remainder of the works belonging to and forming much the larger part of the group are in Spencer township, and will be described in another chapter. Our scientific authority gives a full account of the group, from which we extract at present that portion relating to Columbia township:

One-half mile north of Red Bank station, on the second bottom or plateau of Duck creek, immediately southwest of the western end of the Cincinnati & Eastern railroad trestle, is a mound eight feet high and two hundred feet in circumference at base. It has not been explored, but is cultivated annually. Half a mile to the northwest of this mound is another, with an elevation of five feet and circumference of about one hundred and seventy-five feet. It is on the same level as the foregoing one, and on the lands of the Dr. Duncan estate.

The hill northwest of Red Bank station, and distant about two hundred yards from it, has an elevation of about two hundred and fifty feet. This hill is terraced on its eastern and southern slope; the terraces are five in number, and are undoubtedly the work of human hands. On the top of this hill is a mound. Its present elevation is about four feet, and it has not been explored.

3. Dr. Metz's group C lies altogether in Anderson township, and its several works have been described in the chapter devoted to that subdivision of the county. Group D is also mostly in Anderson, comprising the enclosure and mounds in the northeast corner of the township, and also interesting works in southwestern Columbia, across the river, which are thus described in the doctor's essay:

No. 6 of this group is a small mound, situated in section twenty-two, Columbia township, on an elevated ridge known as Gravelotte, on the estate of T. R. Biggs. It is situated in a corner of a large embankment. Its height is three feet, circumference one hundred and fifty feet.

No. 7 of this group is located in section twenty-nine, Columbia township, one-fourth of a mile west of Camden, just south of the Wooster turnpike. It is now only one-third its former size, it being partly removed in the construction of the Wooster turnpike. Its present dimensions are: Height nine feet, diameter seventy feet.

In the southeast corner of section twenty-nine, at the village of Camden, and three hundred feet east of the south line of Mr. Galloway's residence, is the corner of an embankment which extends east and south to the river. It extends three-fourths of a mile east, until it reaches the bank of the river, which is here about forty feet high, the other running south until it reaches the edge of the gravel ridge, and then runs east to the river. It incloses from eight hundred to one thousand acres of ground. This embankment, fifty years ago, was six feet high and twelve feet wide. It is now scarcely traceable; but can be seen in spring time and just after plowing, when the peculiar color of the soil discloses it.

At the northwest corner of section twenty-eight, half a mile south of the mound No. 7, between the two headwaters of a little stream setting into the Miami, is a cluster of seven small mounds.

4. Some miles from any one of these groups, upon the farm of M. C. Benham, on section thirty, near Pleasant ridge, is a fine, large mound, eight feet high, by two hundred in circumference at the base.

5. On the same turnpike, the Montgomery, which passes near the Benham mound, but a mile and a half to the southwest, on Norwood Heights, is the famous mound of observation, one of the most notable ancient works in the county. It is nine feet high and two hundred feet in base circumference; and its summit commands an extensive view of the surrounding country. From it signals could be flashed or otherwise communicated to similar points of observation in the Mill creek valley, and thence rapidly far up and down the valleys of the Great Miami and the Ohio. Many stone implements, as axes, fleshers, gorgets, chissels, flint arrow-heads and chippings, and also mica, have been found in the neighborhood and through the valley.

THE EARLY DAY.

For the following items of township history we are indebted to the interesting work entitled "Surburban Homes," prepared and published in 1874, by Professor Richard Nelson, now president of Nelson's Business college, Cincinnati:

Though the records of the township have been kept at Madison, we have found it difficult to obtain much information regarding the early settlement of either town or township. The first record of township officers was made April 4, 1803, when Samuel Sheppard was elected chairman, and James Murch, clerk, and James McKnight, N. S. Armstrong, John Seeman, and John Elliott, trustees. Two years afterward, the whole number of votes polled in the township was thirty-two.

During the early history of the township, it was customary to board the poor at the farm houses, the pauper being sold at auction to the lowest bidder. Some of these bids, we noticed, did not exceed one dollar per week. It was also the province of the constable to notify strangers that were supposed to be in indigent circumstances that the township would not be responsible for their support. The following we extracted from a record made in 1826:

"An order to John Jones, constable, for warning B—— R—— and family . . . . to depart the township; also, for warning five supervisors to attend to be sworn into office."

Among the annals may also be seen a book containing the records of the "ear-marks" for stock. These marks are represented in diagrams, which are accompanied with a key, and in 1791 numbered up to one hundred and seventy. The last record stands thus:

"Moses Osborn, having removed out of the township, his mark is transferred to Henry Lockwood; which mark is two slits in the right ear."

The oldest of these private marks for animals, recorded as No. 1 by Judge William Goforth, February 7, 1791, was "a penny on the left ear, and a half-penny the under side of the same." This is accompanied, as in other cases, by a diagram showing the form and position of these marks upon the ear.

A leaf from one of the old justice dockets, bearing dates of August 22, 26, and 30, 1816, shows for what petty sums suits were sometimes brought in those days. In the case of William Irwin against Singer Smith, judgment was rendered against the defendant for two dollars. In that of Moses Kitchell vs. Christopher Leman, judgment was given the plaintiff for "the amount that I found between them," as the magistrate puts it—which amount was seventy-seven and three-fourths cents! The "bale" and a witness in one of these cases was the well-known Isaac Giffin, who receives further notice under the head of Madisonville. He is but recently deceased, and is remembered, among other characteristics, for his inveterate habit of ruminating, or chewing his cud, the same as a cow.

The following document is an interesting but rather painful reminder of its time, as showing for what trifling delinquencies an unlucky debtor could be lodged in prison. It is some satisfaction, in this particular case, that the endorsement upon this writ shows that the debt and costs were paid without recourse to the last resort of an infuriated or determined creditor.

THE STATE OF OHIO, }
Hamilton County. } ss.

To John Jones, Constable of Columbia Township, Greeting:

WHEREAS John Armstrong, treasurer, obtained judgment against John and Rachel Withem, before me, a justice of the peace of said township, for a debt of two dollars eighty-three and one-half cents, and ..... dollars ..... cents costs, on the first day of June last.—You are therefore commanded to levy the said debt and costs, and costs that may accrue, of the goods and chattels of the said John and Rachel Withem, by distress and sale thereof, returning the overplus, if any, to the said John and Rachel Withem, but for want of such property whereon to levy, then take the said John and Rachel Withem to the jail of the county aforesaid, there to be detained until the said debts and costs that may accrue, shall be paid, or ..... otherwise legally discharged: And of this writ make legal service and due return.

Given under my hand and seal, this twenty-second day of April, in the year eighteen hundred and seventeen.

ZACH. BRIGGS,
Justice of the Peace.

A justice in those days received four cents for swearing a witness, seven for issuing a subpœna, twelve and a half for a writ, and the same sum for rendering a judgment, except pro confesso, when the fee seems to have been but ten cents. Constables realized twenty to thirty cents costs in a simple case; but a witness was allowed the extravagant sum of fifty cents for a day's attendance.

The following is a partial transcript of the original pauper record of Columbia township, kindly made for this work by Louis W. Clason, esq., of Madisonville, to whom its readers are also indebted for many other favors. He has exhibited an interest and public spirit in the matter of recording and perpetuating local history, that are every way creditable to his intelligence and foresight.

24th. Raatis Evans brought from Columbia to James Johnson's, and died, at one dollar per day.

The oldest graveyard in the present township of Columbia is at the foot of West Indian hill, on the premises of the Joseph Morton estate. It has not been used for more than half a century. Some of the first bodies interred therein were taken from Columbia village, as several members of the Ward family, who were among the first settlers in that region. About the same time with them came John Harbaugh, who seems to have been an inveterate enemy of the Wards, since he gave directions before his death that he should not be buried in the old cemetery, where their remains reposed, lest the devil, while searching for the body of a Ward, might make a mistake and get him!

The first church built was probably that put up for the Duck Creek Baptist church in 1804. This society was a colony from the church in Columbia, and the secession created a church quarrel which makes considerable figure on the records of the Miami Baptist association. The difficulty was amicably settled by a council, however, before the next meeting of the association. The two earliest pastors were the Rev. William Jones, 1805-14, and Rev. John Clark, 1814-16.

A STATION.

One of the small fortified stations against the Indians, called Nelson's station, is mentioned hereafter in an account of Madisonville; but it makes very little figure in the annals of the early day, and we suspect was little more than an ordinary settlement, with perhaps some special preparations for defence.

NOTES OF SETTLEMENT.

The McFarland settlement was made in sections twenty-four and thirty, near the northwest corner of the township, in the spring of 1705, by Colonel John McFarland, an emigrant from Fayette county, Pennsylvania. He took here a tract of nearly one thousand acres, comprising the whole of the first-designated section and the east half of the second, upon which the village of Pleasant Ridge now stands in part. Near this site McFarland made his first clearing and put up his cabin, which he seems to have fortified somewhat, as it is sometimes remarked as being the last station established in Hamilton county. Life there was comparatively uneventful until some twelve years after the beginnings, when an incident occurred which is well told in the language of John G. Olden, in his Historical Sketches and Early Reminiscences:

In the year 1807, on what is now known as Norwood Heights, in the immediate neighborhood of Pleasant Ridge, and almost four miles south of the present village of Reading, then known as Voorheestown, there lived a man named Daniel Wolverton, with a family consisting of a wife and three children—Jemima, about six years of age; John, nearly four; and an infant but a few months old. They lived in an humble cabin on the spot of ground now occupied by the stately residence of Mr. John W. Siebern, a well-known merchant of Cincinnati.

It was the afternoon of a pleasant autumn day that the two children, Jemima and John, by permission of their mother, went out into the woods to gather nuts. This was by no means an unusual occurrence; the children were accustomed to the woods, which at that day surrounded every cabin in the neighborhood—in fact, the whole country was one continued forest, except here and there a spot laid bare by the woodman's axe. The mother took little heed of her children until near the close of the day, when, as twilight set in and they did not return, she grew anxious, and, going into the woods, called loudly for them, but, receiving no answer, her mind became filled with forebodings of evil. Darkness now came, and the husband, who had been absent during the afternoon, having returned, both parents made diligent search through the adjacent woods. Again they called the names of their little ones, until their voices reached the neighboring cabins and alarmed the whole settlement; still no answer came, save the echo of their own voices. Soon the neighbors came and joined the parents, and the entire night was spent in a fruitless search. The woods throughout the settlement resounded with the voices of men and the firing of guns, but all to no purpose; morning came, but no tidings of the lost ones.

The entire neighborhood was now alarmed, and a large assembly of people met at the cabin of the distressed parents and determined to continue the search. That the canvass might be more thorough and cover a greater territory, they arranged that each person should go alone, or at most in couples. It was agreed also that each party should carry, what was then a common article in every cabin in the country, a 'dinner-horn,' which, it was agreed, should not be used until the children were found, and then the successful party should sound a blast that would be responded to by others, and thus the news be conveyed to all exploring parties, and reach as a joyous signal the almost distracted mother. This also served the purpose of keeping all parties upon the search, as all would know that so long as the horns were silent the object of their pursuit had not been found.

Though small bands of Indians passed through the country occasionally, but little fears were entertained that the children had met with violence at their hands, for they were quite friendly. There was the greater danger from starvation, or death from fright or grief, or from the sting of the deadly serpent. The woods, too, abounded with wild animals. The wolf and the bear were regarded as dangerous; and panthers, though not numerous, had been seen in sufficient numbers to make them a terror to all mothers. With the knowledge that the children had been exposed to all these grave dangers for the entire night, little hope was left of finding them alive. Still, it was thought that whatever their fate, it was better to have it known and put all doubts at rest. Even should they have been devoured by wild animals, it was confidently hoped that at least a portion of their remains would be found within a circuit of a few miles.

With these preparations and these thoughts in their minds, the neighbors went forth again into the forest, some afoot and others on horseback, each party taking different directions; and it would now seem that a few hours would crown their efforts with success. But the day wore away, and evening came; some of the hunters returned, bringing, however, no word of cheer to the grief-stricken parents. The footprints of the children had been seen and followed for some distance down a small ravine leading from the settlement into the Mill Creek valley; but soon the tracks turned upon the high ground, after which all traces of them were lost, and, what appeared stranger still, the children had not been seen by any one, although quite a number of cabins must have been near the range of their travels.

One of the neighbors, named Ralph Auten, had proposed in the outset to put his dog, a fine, noble-looking bloodhound and said to have been a very sagacious animal, on the track of the children, but this was objected to upon the supposition that should the dog find the children, he might attack, or at least frighten them seriously, so the project was abandoned. Notwithstanding the protest of his neighbors, however, Mr. Auten, on resuming the search in the evening, took with him his dog.

A second night was spent in the forest, guns were again discharged and fires were kindled, but still the horns hung silent by the side of the hunters, and a pall of grief over the cabin of Daniel Wolverton.

On the approach of morning Auten and his comrade found themselves on the hills east of Reading, near the present site of Mount Notre Dame. The dog had been absent for some time, but now returned and manifested a strange and unusual anxiety. He turned upon his master a sagacious look, and uttering a few whimpering barks, ran again into the forest, but soon returned to repeat his former expressions. The men followed, and had gone but a few hundred yards when they observed the dog leap upon the trunk of a fallen tree, and there sit uttering his plaintive whimperings. On reaching the tree there the men discovered the children lying huddled together, their legs partly covered with leaves.

The signal blast was promptly given, which was taken up and responded to by others, and soon the monotone notes of the dinner horn sounded and reverberated through the forest, along the hills and in the valley, until the glad tidings reached the home of the distressed parents, bringinging to their hearts for a moment a thrill of joy. These moments of gladness were brief, however, as a second thought saddened their hopes with alternate fears. The children had been found, there was little doubt—but, oh! the momentous question, whether alive or dead, none could answer.

The suspense that followed for an hour or more was intense and painful, not only to the father and mother of the little ones, but also to the multitude that had assembled to await the return of the successful party, and partake of the joy or sympathize in the grief of the parents. Finally Auten and his party returned and restored to the arms of the mother her babes, alive and, though suffering somewhat from fatigue and the effects of hunger, comparatively well.

When found the children were in a state of partial stupor, though they did not seem to have suffered greatly from hunger. The men gave them water and they were somewhat revived, but they still appeared timid and nervous, and it was some time before Auten and his comrade could gain their confidence; but on arriving home and receiving the proper care and nourishment they soon fully recovered.

The little girl could give but an imperfect account of their adventure. The first night she said they walked until they became very tired, all the time expecting to reach home; at last the little boy stopped and could go no further. They sat down under a tree and both cried until they fell asleep. When they awoke it was daylight, and they set out again for home. They ate some acorns and nuts and drank at a little stream. They again became tired and sat down by the fallen tree where they were found. The little boy complained of being cold and she gathered leaves and put around him. At one time she heard people calling and saw them pass, but was too weak to answer. After this she remembered nothing more.

Notes and Credits:

Townships were added to the original Lang records, copied from the Book Early Ohio Tax Records by Esther Weygandt Powell, published in 1971. Some additional names are found in Powell records, although all "G" names were somehow omitted. Some spellings of Lang's record have been corrected by this writer. Original tax records were transferred from Ohio State Auditor's Office to Ohio Historical Society, where they may be seen on microfilm. These records for Hamilton County may also be found in a recently published book Index to Tax Lists of Ohio, 1800-1810, by Ronald Vern Jackson, Ronald Teeples and Schafermeyer, published 1977, Bountiful, Utah. See introduction to this record for credit to Thelma Blair Lang.

Note: A great number of persons shown as Miami Township tax payers in 1810 actually resided in Whitewater Township; some shown in Miami Township list resided in Crosby Township. ---- Marjorie Burress
